11 DEAD, SCORE HURT, TOLL OF HEAT, GALE!

HOT WAVE AND WIND STORMS GRIP MANY SECTIONS

Scorching Weather, Bolts Of Lightning Claim Lives, Cause Heavy Loss

CHICAGO, June 2.—Eleven dead and a score injured, several probably fatally, was the toll left in the midwest today in the wake of a gradually diminishing heat wave which yesterday sent thermometers throughout the district climbing to a new high mark for June 1.

The heat and the severe electrical and wind storm which brought a measure of relief from it, claimed four lives in Chicago, three in Cleveland, two in Des Moines and two near Wayland, Mo.

Western Iowa was the center of a violent wind and electrical storm which played havoc in that section and in eastern Nebraska and southwestern Minnesota. A ninety-mile an hour gale leveled dozens of houses, uprooted trees and paralyzed wire, communication. Damage, it was said today, will run over $100,000.

Golfer Is Killed
As the storm moved east the fury of the wind abated and at Des Moines the lightning took the human toll, bolts there killing a golfer and a farmer.

Missouri and Southeastern Kansas also paid tribute to the wind in lives and property damage. Missouri's victims were killed when their rig was swept from the road by the gale. No loss of life was reported from Kansas.

Hot In New York

NEW YORK, June 2.—New York was experiencing another scorching day with only a slim chance for relief. The weather bureau announced there might be slight showers later in the day. As an aftermath of a day in which the mercury climbed to 88 degrees and maintained an average of 77, one man was dead and eight others were suffering from prostration. The dead man was Adolph Berger, 48, a barber of Newark.

Hottest In 54 Years

CLEVELAND, June 2.—Another day of sweltering heat followed the hottest June 1 recorded in fifty-four years in Ohio weather history, faced Cleveland and other parts of the state today.

DES MOINES, Iowa, June 2.—Five dead, at least thirty injured and property damage estimated at $500,000 was the toll of yesterday's storms in Iowa, a survey this afternoon disclosed.

Two were killed at Des Moines and one each at Cedar Falls, Muscatine and Sully, by lightning.

Peter Brown, farmer, and George Stephenson, were killed by lightning in Des Moines. Stephenson died of heart failure when a bolt struck near him. Two other persons were stunned. One of them was Pat Wilcox, a golfer.

Fourteen were injured and $250,000 damage was done at Sioux City by an eighty-five mile wind.

A $100,000 fire was caused by an early morning storm today at Cedar Rapids.

They took $1,000 in bills from Angelo Lera and $200 from the cash register.

SHRINE HOLDS OPENING AT COLISEUM

Imperial Potentate Chandler Welcomed By Mayor At Formal Exercises

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—With Imperial Potentate James E. Chandler, Kansas City, presiding, the fifty-first annual conclave of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine got under way here today with formal opening exercises at Los Angeles coliseum.

Mayor George Cryer of Los Angeles and David J. Reese, grand master of California Masons, welcomed the nobles, Imperial Potentate Chandler responding.

"An organization of this size—600,000 members—must have a reason for its existence other than promotion of good fellowship and one can find the reason in the Shriners' hospitals for crippled children," declared Potentate Chandler in response to the addresses of welcome.

"The hospital buildings of the Shriners now adorn seven glorified spots in North America and others are on the way."

Council Luncheon

At noon the imperial council was entertained at a California luncheon, which preceded a business session.

To the music of more than fifty bands, the colorful ranks of Islam, including 8000 uniformed Shriners, marched through thronged streets to the huge amphitheatre for the opening ceremonies of the conclave.

After the singing of "America" by members representing the 156 temples of the organization in North America, Los Angeles city officials and leading Shriners welcomed the visitors.

Seek Next Meeting

Atlantic City joined Denver and Philadelphia in seeking the 1926 gathering of the Nobles to-day. Philadelphia appeared to be most highly favored by the Shriners for their next meeting and the Pennsylvanians launched a determined drive to win the honor. Tonight's program includes a Spanish barbecue, rodeo events arranged by Tom Mix, and an entertainment by Douglas Fairbanks and other stars of the screen.

The Shrine parade will feature tomorrow's program. There will be a session of the imperial council at the Hotel Biltmore. A California luncheon will be served the representatives at noon. The planes are scheduled to leave Horten, near Oslo, Friday by boat for Spitzbergen, where they will hop off in the search for the missing polar flyers.

KIDNAP PLOT IS CALLED 'FRAMEUP'

Attorney Charges Affair Is Publicity Scheme For Police Department

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—Sensational charges that the arrest of three men in a plot to kidnap Mary Pickford for $200,000 ransom was a "gigantic frameup" designed to give publicity to certain Los Angeles police officials, were made today by S. S. Hahn, attorney representing C. Z. Stevens, alleged "master mind" in the purported scheme.

Hahn issued a statement declaring if the men were brought to trial he would "laugh the police department out of court."

Before Grand Jury
Characterizing the whole affair as a "publicity plot" for the police department, Hahn declared the scheme was concocted by a police "stool pigeon," who suggested the use of Miss Pickford's name and arranged details of the alleged conspiracy.

Hahn's charges, as well as claims of the police, will be placed before the county grand jury next week, District Attorney Asa Keyes intimated.

Action Delayed

Action on a writ of habeas corpus filed on behalf of Stevens, who is held in jail with Adrian Woods and Claude A. Holcomb, was delayed until tomorrow.

At the Pickford-Fairbanks studios a statement was issued this afternoon to the effect that both Miss Pickford and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, had been warned of the kidnaping plot more than two weeks ago, and that both screen stars had been under a "terrific strain."

"If the arrest of the three men was a 'publicity plot,' as charged by Hahn, Miss Pickford and Mr. Fairbanks had no knowledge of it," the statement said.

DRIVE LAUNCHED TO RESPECT FLAG

Colonel Says Emblem Has Fallen Into Disuse by Big Majority

By EDNA MARSHALL
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1923

NEW YORK, June 2.—The American flag has fallen into misuses that would have shocked the congress which adopted the flag's first model on June 14, 1777, Colonel James Alfred Moss, U. S. A., retired, and now director general of the United States flag association declared in announcing plans for a "reverence for the flag" drive.

People must come to feel the same reverence for the flag they do for a church, says Colonel Moss. It must not be draped. It must not be allowed to touch the ground. It must not be used to make costumes or to make wadded by people who do not stop to think.

"We don't seek to enshrine the flag as a fetish or an ideal to be worshipped," he says. "But we do wish to bring to it proper respect and reverence. Our sole purpose, however, is not to teach flag etiquette. Primarily we want to bring home to every citizen of America the ideals for which it stands. The American people today need to be unified. The flag stands for ideals to which we all subscribe. We hope to afford to reserve patriotism for war times. Through the flag we hope to bring a peace time patriotism that will result in 'better citizenship'."

Already Colonel Moss has spent thirty-two years following the flag. In that period he wrote thirty-two military books, thereby establishing a record never touched by any military authority in the past. His "manual of military training" was widely used in the World War days and referred to as the Bible of training the training camp.

Colonel Moss is a southerner. He was born in Lafayette, La., the son of a soldier of Lee's army. He has fought in three wars. He went through the Cuban campaign with the twenty-fourth infantry and was praised for gallant conduct at the battle of Elcaney in 1898. He served through the Philippine campaign and through the World War as organizer and commander of the 367th infantry, known as the "Buffaloes." His present battle for the flag is being supported by President Coolidge, Charles Evans Hughes, Elihu Root, Cardinal O'Connell, Dr. Robert R. Moton, the negro educator, Rabbi Abraham Simon and countless others.

Phillips presented the club with a table cloth she had made in club colors, red and white.

REV. EDMONDS IN SERMON ON BIBLE

Presbyterian Pastor's Series On Paul's Words Continues

The sermon on Sunday morning in the Glendale Presbyterian church by Rev. Edmonds, the pastor, was in continuation of the series of sermons on Romans, text 8:35-39. "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation or distress, or persecution or famine or nakedness or peril or sword? Nay, in all these things we are more than conquering through Him that loved us. For I am persuaded that neither death nor life nor angels nor principalities nor powers, nor things present nor things to come, nor height nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus, our Lord." He said:

"The closing lines of the eighth chapter of Romans contains the greatest climax of the greatest book of the greatest apostle. In the book there are many passages that fill us with admiration for the richness of style and depth of thought. There is nothing, however, greater than the triumphant declaration of Divine assurance as found in the words of our text."

"Let us consider the logic of it. How did Paul come to speak these words? There is only one answer—Inspiration. God breathed. In his reasoning he develops two main lines of thought. He sets forth God's eternal purpose, back before the world was."

"He shows how the will of God has always been an expression of love; pushes still further back into eternity until he seems to emerge on the everlasting hills where the sun shines and faith cries 'we know.' That's dogmatic; not hope or think or guess—'we know.' Then he pushes through the maze of things to a cross, where the Son of God was slain from the foundation of the world; there he stays until he sees the veil over the Holy of Holies rent; the mists lift, the skies clear, and he sees eternal love shining in God's face, and hears a voice saying: 'He that spared not His own Son.' He sees Calvary in a new light and says: 'This is love inseparable.'"

"Before he could say these things, he had to experience them. Before he could say 'death cannot separate us from the love of God,' he had to die. He said 'I die daily.'—I am dead with Christ and my life is hid with Christ in God. Before he could say 'life cannot separate us,' he had to know life, and he did. He knew the temptations of the world, its allurements, its pleasures, its powers and honors. He held them all in the hollow of his hand and threw them all aside and said: 'Life cannot separate us.'"

"And before he could say 'Angels cannot separate us,' he had to match himself against heavenly and supernatural powers, and he did. He came out of this conflict holding on to the love of God. 'Nothing can separate us from the love of God.'"

"This is the Gospel. Paul said he was not ashamed of it. Nothing can separate us; no power in heaven, earth, sea, or calvary nor accident; nothing outside ourselves, nothing inside, no sin, no pit of degradation, no devil, no lake of fire, nothing that ever existed or ever will exist in this or any world, can ever stop God from loving us. Nothing, absolutely nothing, can ever separate us." It is not a dream, nor a surmise, nor a hope. How, then, can a man stand against such a love? Here, Lord, I yield, for love has conquered."

Love Never Changes
"Some will say: 'How can God love us when things in the world are as they are?' Look at the libertine. Is he not separated from God's love? The criminal, the infidel, the grafter, the hypocrite? Try it at an enthusiast. How can you say that nothing can separate us from the love of God? But he does say it, and this is the glory of it. He does not say that there is no death, no trial, no temptation. He stares all the horrors of existence in the face and says: 'None of these can make God stop loving you.'"

"This is the story of God's great heart. The hard things are no proof that God's love has failed. Maybe you've stopped loving God. It is not our love, but His love, that is inseparable. God has not changed. Our wills and purposes have changed, our habits and loves have altered. But God's love, never. We need not be afraid to let God's love have its way. It will not harm us, nor cheat us, nor fail us. He will make the storm a calm and bring us to our desired haven. Looking unto Him, let your soul say to its Lover: 'O God, I'm not afraid of you. I believe you. Nothing can separate us from your love.' I am my Lord's, and He is mine, for time and eternity."

Love Never Changes

"Some will say: 'How can God love us when things in the world are as they are?' Look at the libertine. Is he not separated from God's love? The criminal, the infidel, the grafter, the hypocrite? Try it at an enthusiast. How can you say that nothing can separate us from the love of God? But he does say it, and this is the glory of it. He does not say that there is no death, no trial, no temptation. He stares all the horrors of existence in the face and says: 'None of these can make God stop loving you.'"

AMERICAN ENVOY IS NOT INNOCENT

Theodore Burton In Geneva Is Described as Wise In Way of Old World

By ROBERT T. SMALL
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1923

CLEVELAND, June 2.—When you read of Theodore E. Burton and the gallant fight he is making for open covenants openly arrived at over at the conference for the control of arms at Geneva, the seat of the League of Nations, do not think of him as another American "innocent" abroad. Mr. Burton hails from this city by the lake. In fact he is Cleveland's favorite son, so far as the Grand Old Party is concerned. It seems as if he had lived here virtually all of his three score and thirteen years, although the vital statistic records insist he was born at Jefferson, Ohio, just five days before the hard Christmas of 1851.

Although American in every fibre of his vigorous body, Mr. Burton is wise in the ways of the old world. He is internationally minded, if you please, and has devoted a greater part of an extremely busy life to serving his country in an international way. As head of the American delegation to the arms conference, Mr. Burton has taken the lead in all of the discussions at Geneva. He has sought strenuously to limit the sale of arms by one nation to another. He has sought to stifle the use of poison gases in warfare. He has had a most unique position in not being an "unofficial observer" for although the arms convention is being held in the very shadow of the league of nations, it is entirely divorced from that body and therefore a republican body left free to send an official delegation to the conference.

Remarkable Man
Mr. Burton is a remarkable man in many ways. In the first place he has lived to well within 74 years without falling a victim to feminine wiles. By his Cleveland friends he is proclaimed the most distinguished as well as the most confirmed bachelor in all the countryside. And now that the women have the vote, they have not held bachelorhood against Mr. Burton for he has been elected a representative to the last three congresses by smacking big majorities in which the women have voted heavily for the unsmacked statesman.

Mr. Burton is also remarkable in the fact that starting his public life in the House of Representatives at Washington, he graduated eventually into the Senate, and then, at 69, started all over again by going back to the House. His public service has not been without reward, however, for he has seen his salary as senator and congressman increased from $5000 a year to $7,500 and now at last to $10,000. If public service at the capital of the nation were financially recognized on the basis of individual merit rather than collective service, Mr. Burton would have been drawing many times the fixed salaries of the officers he has occupied. Being an old bachelor the Clevelanders have had no distractions, and being of good health, by and large, he has been able to devote ten and twelve hours a day to the job without charging overtime or having the rolling pin brandished over his head for getting home late to dinner.

Start in Life
Theodore Burton started life as a lawyer and for thirteen years devoted himself to Blackstone. Then away back there in 1888, thirty-seven years ago, he was elected to congress, and since that time with one or two minor interruptions, he has devoted himself wholly to the public service.

There is no other man in the branch who was there when Mr. Burton came to the House of Representatives. It is as a member of the executive committee and the executive council of the International Parliamentary Union that Mr. Burton has seen most of his service abroad. His work for peace in the union has taken him at various times to meetings in London, Paris, Geneva, the Hague, Vienna, Copenhagen and Bern. Now he is back at Geneva still on public service. When he gets through there he will go to Paris and maybe to one or two other capitals in Europe, for in addition to all of his other duties, Mr. Burton is a member of the foreign debt funding commission and is expected to bring home some pertinent if not promising reports as to the ability of certain allies to meet their obligations to Uncle Sam.

Some Americans go to Europe for a holiday and a frolic. Mr. Burton, after fifteen or eighteen hours of continuous duty, can always stretch and yawn and mutter: "Ho hum, nothing to do until tomorrow!"

DRAMATIC STUDY

We are proud to enjoy the reputation that this store has—that indefinable something that makes one man the leader of his set—one firm the leader in its city. Since the opening of this store in Glendale it has been natural and logical to assume that this was the store of great vision in preparing for the future of Glendale's growing population, and the policy adopted assures our store of a leadership that is in keeping with the advancement and commercial life of this city.

Motor Party Tells Of Sand Storm In Desert

Mrs. Pearl G. Curran of 342 Riverdale drive returned Sunday night from a motor trip with friends to Red Rock canyon, where what promised to be a pleasant camping trip ended with a desert sandstorm.

The party pitched tents at Red Rock on Friday night and enjoyed a delightful night in the open. Saturday they moved camp to Painted Rock, pitched tents, and after an early camp fire supper, retired at an early hour. A desert wind rose about 8 o'clock, and increased in velocity until the party was forced to break camp and drive to Mojave for shelter. The top of one automobile was torn off, and other damage done to the vehicles, by the wind.

The drive to Mojave was made under difficulties, and they arrived at midnight and found the hotel crowded and accommodations almost impossible to secure. Members of the party were Mrs. Pearl G. Curran and daughter Gloria, Mr. and Mrs. George Finucane and sons George and Kenneth. Los Angeles parties were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowen, Mrs. Beatrice Koppen, Mrs. P. Linkogel, Mr. and Mrs. McLellan and son Harry.

rose P.-T. A. will also be present to enjoy the annual picnic tomorrow. Every one is asked to bring one extra dish of salad, or hot food, a cup, plate and utensils. Coffee will be furnished.

MONTROSE NOTES

MONTROSE, June 2.—An wool hunting flag, six by ten feet, has been presented to the La Crescenta Women's club by the Simpson Hardware Co., which is furnishing the hardware for the new clubhouse. The steel pole has been furnished by the Harrison Plumbing company who has the plumbing contract in the building. Frank Howard, contractor, erected the pole. The flag was aloft Memorial day.

In helping the members of the American Legion No. 288 Auxiliary members will be assisted in putting on their drive by women from various valley organizations who will be on duty in the Montrose State bank during banking hours throughout the week. The women will accept contributions to aid Legionnaires to raise their quota of $1,000 for the valley.

At the last meeting of the Crescenta Women's club a volunteer contribution resulted in the sum of $17 being raised for the fund. A house to house canvass is being made by members of the Legion. Any sum is acceptable.

Over one hundred people attended John's Neighbors night at the Mission theatre in San Gabriel on Saturday evening when the La Crescenta valley was entertained as the guests of John Steven MacGroarty, author and producer of "La Golondrina."

The northwest corner of Hollywood and Ocean View avenues has been cleared and the first vegetable and fruit stand to be erected in the valley is being built there. It will be occupied by one of the Los Feliz road merchants.

ELECTRIC LINE HOLD ANNUAL SPEEDS WORK ON PROJECT ELECTION, MEETING

Pacific Railway Tells What It Is Accomplishing In Terminal Endeavor

By CAL FISHER
For Southland News Service.
LOS ANGELES, June 2.—"The greater concentrated building activity that I have seen in progress during my experience," was the manner in which P. J. Walker, contractor on the Pacific Electric's Glendale-Hollywood subway terminal and office structure summed up the feverish activity now in progress on this great transportation project. As indicating the amount and extent of work being done, there are now engaged on this job five steam shovels, 60 trucks and 600 men. Three eight-hour shifts are being worked by 11 except steam shovels.

In an effort to get on an operating basis in the new surface station, beach for west coast beach patrons and also for Hollywood passengers pending completion of the subway terminal, engineering, electrical and transportation employees of the Pacific Electric since last Monday have been engaged in razing buildings, shifting tracks and re-locating trolley and power lines. Railway officials yesterday stated that on next Sunday Venice Short Line, South of the new surface station located on the south end of the property. By tomorrow, it is said, Hollywood and all other cars and trains formerly using the Hill Street station will be on a normal operating basis and former station site cleared of all building, tracks, poles, power and trolley lines.

Work in Progress
Steam shovels are working at four different locations and underpinning of adjoining buildings is in progress. In some locations, adjoining structures are being underpinned to a depth of 70 feet, or the approximate height of a six-story building.

E. C. Johnson, chief engineer of the Pacific Electric and R. V. LaBarre for the contractor are supervising and in direct charge of construction activities.

An artist's pen sketch panorama is now being prepared showing just how Park avenue will be opened up to care for Hollywood and San Gabriel valley cars and trains in branching from Glendale to Sunset boulevard.

Mrs. Paul A. Hoffman, who has served as president during the past two years, submitted a detailed report of the past year. During her administration the club has been organized on a satisfactory financial basis. In her report she cited the sixth season, just closing, as the most successful season in the club's history.

In recognition of the work of Mrs. Hoffman, the club voted to make her the first honorary member of the organization.

Of special interest was the mention made of publicity given by local papers to the club. Mrs. Hoffman stated that publicity had been most generously given, and if paid for at the regular advertising rate would amount to several hundred dollars.

The following letter has been received by The Glendale Evening News from Mrs. Aida de Acosta Root, of New York, director of the division of publications and promotion of the American Child Health association:

"Permit me to thank you on behalf of the American Child Health association for the very effective editorial support you gave to the observance of May day—Child Health day. This idea has been favorably received in so many quarters and so many real constructive health programs are growing out of it that we are led to believe it has more than justified the hopes in the minds of the sponsors."

SLOT MACHINE ORDINANCE DELAYED

Second Reading of Proposed Ordinance Is Continued; Applications Filed

Ordering filed an application of the Western Vending Machine Co. of Santa Monica to install two nickel slot machines in Glendale, the City Council today continued action on a proposed ordinance permitting the operation of the machines in this city until next Thursday. The ordinance, introduced more than two weeks ago by Councilman S. C. Kinch, has been scheduled for its second reading at the last three sessions, but each time it has been continued.

The application of the Western Vending Machine Co. asks permits to install the nickel slot machines at the Greenlee Service station and the Maryland Pharmacy. A recent application from C. R. Bell of Los Angeles to install eight of the machines has also been filed.

The proposed ordinance limits the number of slot machines that may be installed in Glendale to fifty, and places the entire power to grant or to revoke permits in the council. A fee of $15 per quarter for each machine is also provided in the proposed measure.

BRIDGES' FATE DEPENDS ON BOND VOTE

Glendale Sees Big Benefits If Proposed Spans Are Authorized At Polls

Upon the fate of the $500,000 bridge bond issue before the voters of Los Angeles at the general municipal election today depends largely the approval or rejection of proposed new concrete bridges at Glendale boulevard and Hyperion way, which would give Glendale adequate egress from downtown Los Angeles and easy access to Hollywood and beach cities via Santa Monica boulevard.

Unless the bridge bonds carry in Los Angeles it is doubtful that the proposed structures can be built at the present time. County appropriations, amounting to approximately $600,000 have been promised by the Board of Supervisors to help finance the bridges in the event the city of Los Angeles furnishes a like amount.

If the bonds carry today, the remainder of Los Angeles' share of the bridge costs will be made up from available funds in the city treasury. Indications were that a large majority vote would be cast for the bonds, although opposition to the issue has developed in the southern part of the city.

Three Structures
The new bridge program calls for a Y-shaped bridge at Glendale boulevard in the Atwater district, one arm of the span connecting the main road through Ivanhoe into Los Angeles, and the other leading to Hyperion way, to form a direct connection with Santa Monica boulevard.

This bridge, to be of the new, cast concrete construction, will cost in the neighborhood of $900,000. Another span at Fletcher drive, half a mile south of the Glendale-Hyperion bridge, to cost $300,000, is also contemplated. A small structure at the head of Mulholland drive, to be of the same type, is also being planned. It will cost approximately, $100,000.

At the present rate of progress more than eighty hours will be required to read the book.

Day and night reading continues, with a crowd watching at all times. More than seventy persons have engaged in the reading.

JUBILEE YEAR PLANS ARE LAUNCHED

Local Committee Suggests Spanish Costumes As Proper Observance

Glendale's important and picturesque part in the statewide observance of California's seventy-fifth anniversary of admission to statehood, was pictured by members of the Glendale Jubilee Year committee when they met late yesterday afternoon to launch plans for local observance.

Through a spirited campaign which they will inaugurate shortly, the committee members hope to establish the wearing of Spanish costume throughout Glendale as the major feature of the jubilee observance here. Co-operation of the entire city in bringing Spanish dress into vogue during the remainder of 1925 will be sought by the committee.

Headed by George F. Orgibet, the committee outlined plans for popularizing the broad-brimmed sombrero and flashy red, yellow and green waist sashes for men and the gay mantillas, Spanish style skirts and other characteristic apparel for women.

Spanish Glendale
Through co-operation of the schools, service clubs, the Merchants' association and Tuesday Afternoon club, it is hoped to have the dress of seventy-five years ago adopted generally by men and women of the city. The value of publicity gained through a "Spanish Glendale" was stressed by William L. Truitt, J. E. Olson, Mrs. Ella Richardson, Mrs. George U. Moyse and others who attended the committee meeting.

In order to launch the Spanish dress idea in Glendale a small group of children from the Harvard and Broadway high schools and the Wilson and Glendale avenue intermediate schools will be outfitted by the festival committee and will be instructed to advocate the styles among other students at the schools. Printed literature will be distributed to school children to carry home to their parents.

Merchants' Part
Service clubs of the city will be relied upon by the committee to sponsor the costume idea and to "pioneer" in the wearing of the belts and hats. Chairman Orgibet and Mr. Truitt will work out plans with the Glendale Merchants' association for Spanish displays in their show windows.

Merchants will be asked to carry a full line of merchandise needed in the Spanish costumeing also. A plan for using special references to California Jubilee year in advertisements of all kinds will be worked out by the merchants.

The festival year committee will urge the immediate adoption of the Spanish dress. Spanish costume dances and other events to stimulate enthusiasm which will lead up to the major fiesta scheduled for this city on September 9, when a Spanish pageant, attracting statewide attention, is to be staged.

The committee working on a California festival year program for Glendale is functioning under the direction of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce. Plans which they will advance will be sponsored by the chamber.

TRAFFIC RULE SUSTAINED IN COURT

Burbank Law Prohibiting Trucks On Unimproved Streets Held Good

Glendale's ordinance prohibiting heavy traffic over thinly paved streets, mostly three-inch macadam roads, are constitutional and can be enforced, Superior Judge Hartley Shaw ruled yesterday in a suit filed by the Atlas Mixed Mortar Co. against the city of Burbank. On the outcome of the action rested the constitutionality of similar ordinances in other municipalities.

There were two cases involved in the decision. One upheld the right of the municipality to determine which highways are "improved" and to prohibit heavy trucks on unimproved streets. Judge Shaw held that pavements of three-inch macadam are "unimproved" streets.

The second issue involved the right of the city to legislate heavy traffic off so-called "improved" streets by ordinance, upheld in the Shaw decision.

Glendale Ordinance
In Glendale most of the ordinances prohibiting heavy traffic deal with streets with not more than three inches of macadam pavement, although in some instances heavy trucking is prohibited from using streets that are in the "improved" classification.

OUT OF DEBT

Some people are plunged into debt; others drift into it. Sudden misfortune—sickness; an accident, helping a friend or relative, may get you there very suddenly. Self-indulgence—the purchase of just a little more than your income will pay for—may get you into it a few dollars at a time.

But, whatever the cause; if you are in debt, get out of it. Don't walk with a hobble. Don't risk embarrassment at every first of the month. Don't invite mortification. Get out of debt.

Go about it systematically. Set the amount of each month's earnings which you can spare, and put it away at interest. Then, don't let a payday go by without adding that much to your freedom-from-debt fund.

SPAIN'S TROUBLES

There was a time when Spain's empire extended over much of Europe and America, to say nothing of the islands of the sea. But she has gradually been stripped of her possessions and is now facing "an Ireland" at home. Her external territories reduced to a strip of coast in Morocco, 150 miles long and 30 miles in depth, with a population of half a million. Spain has lost not regiments only, but armies in the long struggle to hold this small province and has utterly failed to put down the insurrection of the Rif.

And now Spain must turn her attention to internal affairs, for the four Catalan provinces in the northeast of Spain are organizing to form an area free from the yoke of that country. Spain is said to have adopted drastic measures to stifle the ambitions of the Catalonians which date back to the fifteenth century and the last straw was the suppression of the Catalan Mancomunitat, an administrative Catalan assembly, elected by universal suffrage which has been functioning for eleven years.

The results accomplished by this assembly are well-nigh unbelievable. It established schools and universities of all kinds, public libraries, meteorological stations and museums. It built telephone lines and established the telephone in 400 towns. It built good roads and established hospitals throughout the region. It founded savings banks and loaned money to farmers and industrialists. It replaced or created all services needed in the region and was suppressed because it showed all too plainly the benefits resulting from regional autonomy.

Madrid, of course, defends the suppression of the Mancomunitat because it has fomented rebellion against Spain and encouraged Separatism. Spain declared that a state within a state is inadmissible.

It is interesting that the Catalans advance the theory that this is an international problem, not merely a Spanish one. Catalonia, they say, is the key to the western Mediterranean and could easily control the western side and center of a great quadrangle formed by the great sea. The people are friendly to France and their separation from Spain would make France the master of the Mediterranean and influence the Moroccan question, it is believed by some.

FARMERS CO-OPERATE

Secretaries Hoover and Jardine, as well as others who are qualified to express an opinion, have said that the hope of the farmer is in organization and co-operation. If this is so, then the farmers of California are not going to be the last to place themselves upon a firm economic foundation, for 91 per cent of the farmers of this state do business through co-operative organizations and there has been a gain of 378 per cent in the membership of farmers' business organizations in the state since 1915. Ten years ago the membership of the 197 farmers' co-operative organizations then in existence in the state was 22,400. Today the figure has jumped over the 100,000 mark, while the number of organizations totals 363.

Fruit and vegetable co-operatives head the list of farmers' co-operative efforts with 246 distinct organizations. Nut products come next with 40, and dairy products follow with 23. In addition there are 14 grain groups and 32 miscellaneous organizations embracing activities in wool, poultry, livestock and other lines. More than 90 per cent of the farmers' organizations in the state are incorporated but only one-fifth report paying stock dividends. Ninety per cent of the organizations limit membership to member-producers.

Two and a half million farmers out of the 6,400,000 in the United States now belong to more than 10,000 co-operative bodies which do an annual business in excess of $2,500,000,000.

OUR AUTOCRATS

Many Americans have allowed themselves to become excited about monarchistic tendencies in Germany as exemplified in the recent election of von Hindenburg as president. While Kaiser Wilhelm, the Czar of Russia and Franz Josef of Austria were autocratic rulers, present European kings are figure-heads, more or less, as compared with the power which we, in this country, give our executives.

Our Congress meets and makes laws but we insist that the president shall have the final word. It is for him to say whether these measures shall be placed upon our statute books or not, although of course we expect the Supreme Court to pass upon their constitutionality.

The same thing is true in the states. The California legislature passed several hundred bills at the last session, some of which the people approved and some of which they did not. But the legislature adjourned and neither the members of that body nor the people knew what had been accomplished until the governor had determined which bills he would sign.

But while we give our President and our governors autocratic powers that the kings of Europe do not enjoy, yet we do not allow them to become autocrats. They must watch their step. We must be assured that this power is used in our interests, otherwise off come their heads.

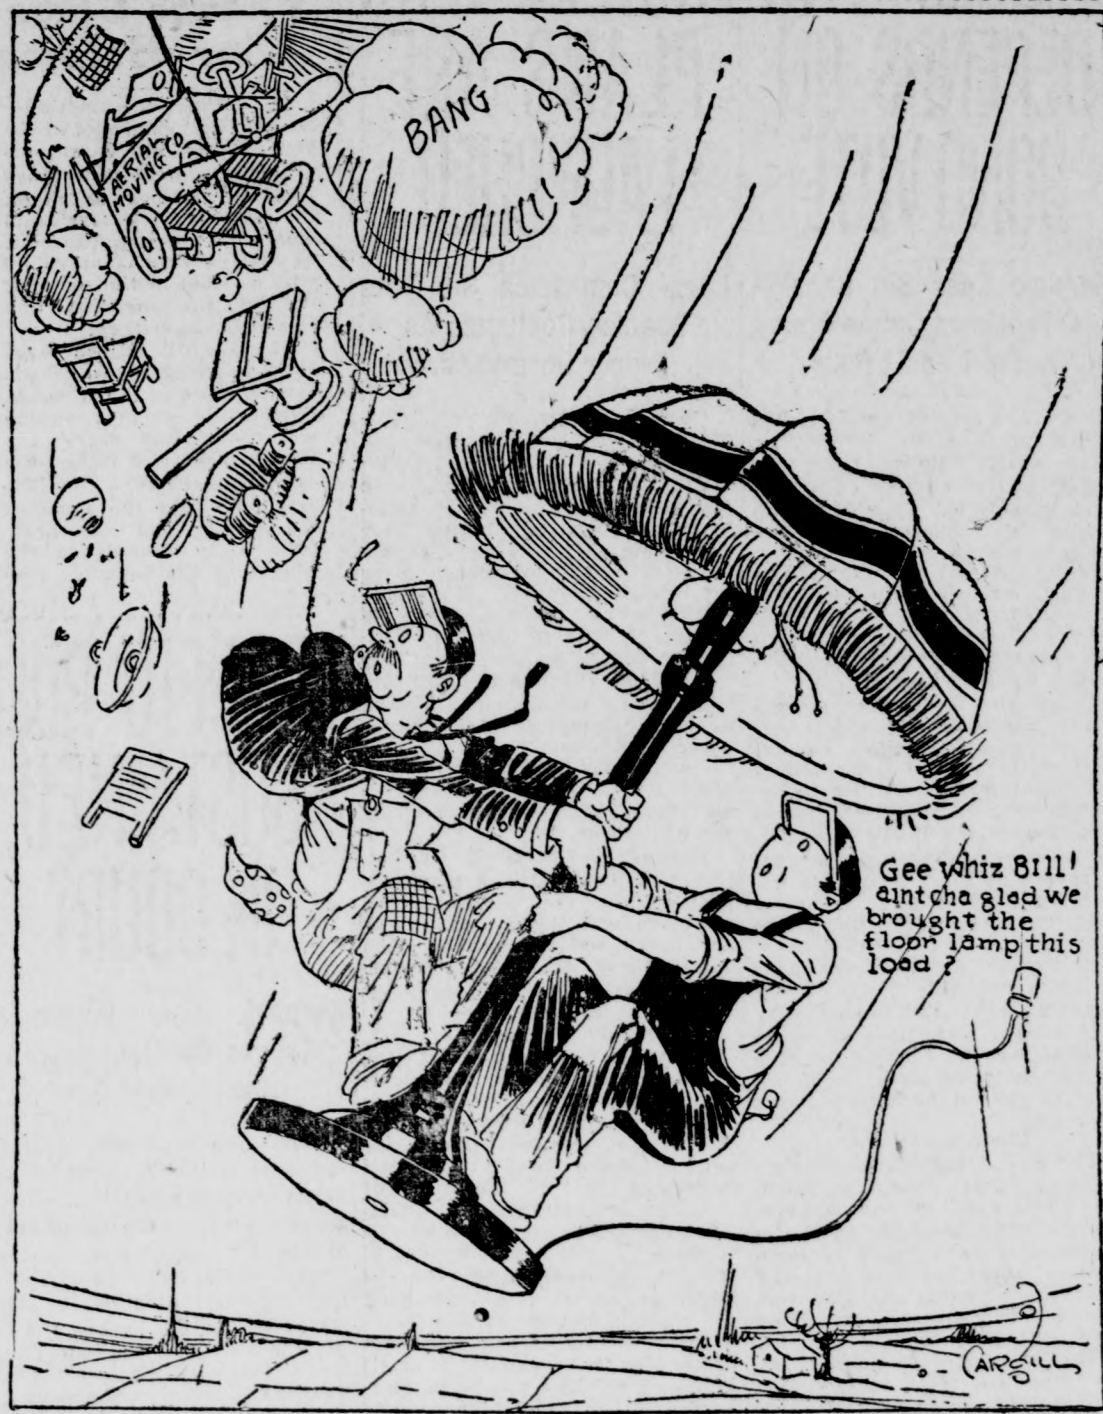

KINGS AND PRESIDENTS

Being a king or president has its drawbacks. People who occupy high positions are more restricted in their actions than the average citizen. We can choose our own guests and our own friends, and do so, but we like to dictate to our rulers.

When the American tourist grabbed the hand of King George and introduced himself and "the boy," the king was doubtless amused at the incident. But when 10,000 other tourists learned how the Iowa man had been received, and started to follow suit, it was necessary for the king to protect himself from them.

Recently, when an international association of women was meeting in Washington, a few were invited to the White House. This caused hard feeling, and some of the women omitted did not hesitate to voice their dissatisfaction. So the invitation was changed to include "all American women." Among the American women were some negroes, and others would not go. The president cannot choose his own guests.

MOVING DAY IN THE FUTURE

Bend

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Learn to bend before the storm. The storm passes harmlessly over the bushes which bend before it, while it lays low the rigid oak.

It is all well enough to be firm and to stand squarely on your position, but at the same time it is well to learn how to bend before the blast. There is no man that is secure from opposition. Disaster and trouble come to all of us. It is found that those who bend before the blast last longer than those who are so egotistic that they wish to retain their position.

This is one of the advantages of courtesy in the world, and politeness. They are qualities that enable one to get far.

We should cultivate flexibility. If our friends do not meet their obligations promptly, or if someone disappoints us, are we ready easily to adjust ourselves to these misdoings? Or are we brittle, so that the slightest thwarting of our plans breaks us in pieces?

You are not going to have smooth sailing through this world. Storms will come and earthquakes.

There is no use wasting time in tears or imprecations when things go wrong with us. It is best to adjust ourselves as rapidly as we can to the unfavorable circumstances.

Life is made up of shocks and jars. We need a flexible disposition that can absorb these attacks and not be destroyed by them.

One of the most absurd things is sticking to an opinion because it was yours yesterday. Emerson says that "consistency is the hobgoblin of philosophers, of divines and of little minds."

If your mind is growing and your outlook broadened constantly, there will be necessity for a perpetual alteration of your position.

A good deal of the stubbornness of the world is sheer egotism. We hold an opinion because it is our own and not because it is true.

A readiness to listen to opposing arguments and to modify one's self by them is an indication that one is seeking the truth and not merely seeking to be consistent.

Who are you anyway that you should set so much store by what you thought yesterday? Perhaps the opinion of somebody else is truer than your own.

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNAIRD

Aristotle makes the remark that to be happy means to be self-sufficient.

To be self-sufficient, to be all in all to oneself, to want for nothing—this is assuredly one of the chief qualifications for happiness.

It follows from this that a man is best off if he be thrown upon his own resources and be all in all to himself; and Cicero goes so far as to say that a man who is in this condition cannot fail to be happy.

The more a man has himself, the less others can be to him. This is obvious.

All society necessarily involves, as the first condition of its existence, mutual accommodations and restraint upon the part of its members. This means that the larger it is, the more insipid will be its tone.

A man can be himself only so long as he is alone; and if he does not love solitude, he will not love freedom; for it is only when he is alone that he is really free. This many philosophers have preached.

Constraint is always present in society, like a companion of whom there is no riddance; and in proportion to the greatness of a man's individuality, it will be hard for him to bear the sacrifices which all intercourse with others demands.

Solitude will be welcomed or avoided, according as a man's personal value is large or small—the wretched feeling when he is alone, the whole burden of his misery; the great intellect delighting in its greatness; and every one, in short, being just what he is.

Further, if a man stands high in Nature's list, it is natural and inevitable that he should feel solitary. It would be an advantage to him if his surroundings do not interfere with this feeling; for, if he has to see a great deal of other people who are not of like character with himself, they will exercise a disturbing influence upon him, adverse to his peace of mind; they will rob him, in fact, of himself, and give him nothing to compensate for the loss.

"I am convinced that France, by temperament, situation and tradition, is a born mediator between the peoples of the north and south Europe, and that the English are coming to give increasing attention to this basic truth," so declared H. G. Wells, British historian, recently in discussing France's position and the recent political crisis there.

We consider the French firstly as Europeans, and that is why we recently were distressed, although not antagonistic, at many symptoms of excessive individualism. But I believe that, thanks to Herriot, we are on the point of entering an era of Franco-British trust and affection. The fallen premier inaugurated a system that is destined to bear vast happy fruits."

Wells then switched zestfully to the French crisis, replying to a suggestion that he is the sworn enemy of France.

"I criticized France, not as an Englishman, but as a liberal critical of all reaction. It is nonsense to say that people may not criticize another country to which they are actually linked. It is necessary, though one can afford to be polite and eulogize distant states. Personally, I am convinced that England and France are each other's property. They belong one to another."

"What many people forget is the kinship of the people of Southern England with the inhabitants of Normandy and Brittany. You hear it said that the French are Latin and the English Nordic. I have always thought the French character was far more Nordic than Latin. The French may speak a Latin tongue, but they don't act Latin—witness dictatorships elsewhere."

Timely Views

"The most momentous question of the hour in American government is the problem of the nation's economics."

Huston Thompson, of the federal trade commission, gave the economics problem this distinction in a recent address.

He urged women to take hold of the situation, as a distinctly women's problem, and to realize the power they have in working out its solution.

"There are some trade associations," Thompson declared, "whose representatives have done very remarkable things. They have fought to clear up unfair methods of competition. There is another group which started out with the same idea but slipped over the line and became price fixers. There is another clique which starts out purposely to fix and advance prices and to control production."

"There is still another group which now has a Colossus in practically every industry. Almost silently year by year in the United States there has grown a combination in each industry until, if you were to ask me the question, I

Miss Harris of Record Fame Tops Program At Keith's Vaudeville House

It's some week at the Orpheum with all the Shriners in town. A program full of variety and merit is given. What a difference a short year will make, but Marion Harris has certainly changed for the better since her last sojourn here. Marion can sing and she does so with that inimitable personality that has made herself and her records so popular throughout the world.

The popular song writer, Ernest Ball, is back in town with his new song hits and some not so new, but all sung beautifully. Last night the weeping brigade came out on parade when he sang "That Boy of Mine," and when that happens the song must be good. He is aided by a bunch of girls who, beside being easy to look at, can sing songs as they should be sung.

Greatest Death Rate Also Shown Over Period Of One Year

TOKIO, June 2.—Japan has the highest birth rate of any nation in which vital statistics are kept. It also has the highest death rate.

Figures for 1922, the latest to be tabulated, show that there were 2,084,091 births in Japan during that year, while there were 1,350,729 deaths, an increase in population of 733,362. On a percentage basis, this indicates an annual population increase of 1.2, or at the rate of twelve for each 1000 residents.

The Japanese birth rate in 1922 was 34.94 in 1000. The next highest rate in any recorded country was Portugal, with 32.9. The Japanese death rate for that year was 22.78 to 1000—higher than that of any other nation.

Marriages totaling 516,280 were solemnized in Japan during 1922, while there were 51,556 divorces. Figures show that Japan has a divorce rate of 0.88 for every 1000 marriages.

ECONOMY ORDERS STIR ARMY CIRCLE

President's Instruction to Cut Down Expense Seen as Budget Conflict

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1923

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Behind the instruction of President Coolidge to the army and navy departments to make a survey as to further economies lies a story of conflict between the budget director and the secretary of war. It is first serious differences between advice of a cabinet officer and that of the budget director, the one looking at it from the viewpoint of what experts consider military efficiency and the other regarding it as a question of economy.

The present secretary of war, John W. Weeks, threatened resignation if his viewpoint was not accepted. Mr. Coolidge acceded to Mr. Weeks' wishes and the items in the proposed estimate last winter were retained. Now Mr. Weeks is in ill health and probably will resign before another budget is sent to congress. The new secretary of war, whoever he is, will have to fall in with the president's economy program. For the same issue is now involved in the requested survey for further economies.

But behind Mr. Weeks was the general staff including General Pershing all of whom thought the cuts in the military estimate were beyond public safety in this era of international uncertainty. The war department has looked askance at the president's economy program fearing that it might be carried too far. Mr. Weeks did not carry his controversy to the public prints but waged it in private.

Directors' Viewpoint

"If the budget directors' viewpoint is to be accepted on what constitutes an efficient army," Mr. Weeks is reported to have said to the president, "then you do not need a secretary of war." The general staff is, of course, restrained from differing from the president or the budget director in the press. There is also a strict rule by which all officials of the government are bound, namely that they must not seek higher appropriations when testifying before Congress committees although they are permitted to answer questions from which legislators may draw their own opinions as to whether the budgets they are asked to pass are safe from the viewpoint of national defense.

Mr. Coolidge is not represented as differing from the argument of those who think the objective should be efficient national defense, but he has been insistent wherever possible, and he naturally leans on the judgment of the budget director, General Lord, who knows something about army matters and also is interested in government economy.

It will be several months before the whole thing will be thrashed out in Congress, but already the order to look for further cuts is causing uneasiness in the army particularly.

Fighting for Peace

The army, incidentally, has sought to do everything in its power to interest public opinion in national defense, and hopes that the youths who go to the training camps this summer will come back impressed with the necessities of a citizen army. For without the officers and personnel of the regular army an expanded military establishment in time of war would be of doubtful value.

The significant debate between the army and the White House on the subject of a defense test for Armistice day is not one of the outcroppings of the army's desire to impress on the public the importance of studying national defense, and, though Mr. Coolidge has given permission for such a test to be held on the Fourth of July, the army officers think the purpose is more or less defeated because there isn't time enough to make arrangements for a mobilization on that day.

The army is fighting for a peace-time strength that can be converted into war-time strength quickly. The economy champions are reverting to the ideas of peace time, namely, that, with no war in the offing, the expenditures of funds for future war might well be lessened.

FIRE UNDERMINES BURYING GROUNDS

Oldest Cemetery In State of Pennsylvania Gives Way To Coal Mining

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 2.—Work is almost completed in removing the bodies from Bethel cemetery, near here, where fire in underlying coal grounds, is destroying the little that remains of the cemetery.

The Bethel cemetery is one of the oldest burying grounds in the state. The Bethel church stood near the cemetery until coal stripping operations on surrounding property made it almost inaccessible. The building was removed to a better location, but the congregation would not sell the cemetery ground.

COMMENT by GIL A. COWAN

Everyone is subject to error. Mistakes sometimes are deplorable, other times ludicrous, particularly when they appear in print. And yet little errors which creep into newspaper copy give us something to talk about.

For instance, in yesterday's edition of The Glendale Evening News the writer was described as making a 500 mile trip per motorcycle in a twenty-four hour period. Perfectly possible, although it made some very close friends laugh gleefully when they knew the trip was made much more comfortably by motorcar.

Now as to qualifying for motorcycle riding, the writer on several occasions in Bakersfield and Washington, D. C., has been a tandem passenger of motorcycles making better than sixty miles an hour over city streets. Speeding automobile and trick airplane riding never gave a greater thrill.

To revert to the subject of errors, however, there is no one proof against them. Every writer makes them. Copyreaders in the editorial rooms add to them, printers are noted for them and proofreaders, as a rule, worry more about the mistakes of others than correcting those before them. And that's that.

Radio fans are in their glory here this week. With three score Shriner bands, some carrying their own jazz orchestras, programs continuing throughout the night and day, soloists and prominent people from all over the United States singing and talking from the half dozen Los Angeles broadcasting studios, there is no lack of entertainment.

Music by Medinah temple band of 120 pieces from Chicago proves so voluminous, however, that there seems to be a large field for acoustic engineers in so arranging music rooms of homes to absorb the great volume necessary to bring out the harmony in band and organ music.

While radio receiving sets are to be found in almost every nook and cranny of this country, broadcasting is literally in its infancy, now being about four years old. Much is to be learned in the next ten years.

Los Angeles is holding a municipal election today which savors of a farce, insofar as interest of the voting public is concerned. It was indicated by the very few people seen at the polls.

Of course, the Shrine week festivities and a parade today kept many from caring about exercising their right of citizenship in expressing a choice for the several councilmanic and other officers to be elected. But there are nine more or less vital propositions on the ballot which will be determined by a small majority. That is wrong in democratic government.

Glendale in two weeks will be called upon to vote on important bond issues. They should not lose because of lack of interest. And certainly a minority vote cannot assure the success of the propositions.

If you believe in the school development, as proposed, and you are in favor of the construction of a Memorial hall, be prepared to cast your ballot for them June 16.

Railway Summer Camp At Arrowhead Opened

Amid scenic surroundings and adjacent to Lake Arrowhead, the Pacific Electric employee's vacation camp was opened to the company's 6500 workers and their families yesterday. The camp will remain open this year until September 30 and early reservations point to an attendance exceeding that of last year, when 8000 employees and their families spent their annual vacation leave at the company's mountain retreat.

The resort which has been operated by the company for eight years, is operated on a non-profit basis, charges being designed to cover only operating expenses. Several classes of accommodations are available, either tent cottages, dormitories or two room bungalows. Employees may either prepare their own meals or take them at the company's cafe on the property. Daily motor launch trips on the lake and sightseeing bus trips are furnished free, as are other amusements, the only charge to employees being for food and lodging.

The camp covers a site of sixteen acres about a mile from Lake Arrowhead village and represents an investment of approximately $85,000. About $45,000 has been spent on improvements and enlargements during the past three years.

N. B. Vickery, manager of the Pacific Electric club, an organization of employees of the railway for social diversion with a membership of about 4000 employees, is in charge of the camp's activities.

Bring the Frigidity of the Frozen North Right Into Your Own Home.

THIS SUMMER you will need a good, reliable refrigerator and we know of no better one on the market today than the Belding-Hall "Notaseme." This is well constructed of seasoned ash and stone lined. The receptacle for the storage of food is made of Granitewood, a composition stone, and will not leak, rust nor absorb dampness; no seams, therefore no cracks nor crannies to harbor uncleanness. Healthfulness is best produced by cleanliness. Where there is cleanliness, the air must be sweet and pure. A refrigerator is not necessarily good because it maintains extremely low temperature, as it may do this and at the same time be unhealthy because uncleanly. The Belding-Hall conforms to every sanitary standard and we can thoroughly guarantee it to the thrifty housewife.

—on the Big Red Cars (Interurban Service)

Four pretty good "R's" to remember in connection with the Pacific Electric Interurban Service.

Ride and read. Or ride and relax and rest.

While the motorman does the driving for you, you are at leisure with your newspaper, or your meditations or your plans for the day. That half hour or hour after breakfast and before dinner, which is worth as much as any other time, is well spent in this way.

The comfortable Big Red Cars thus offer you a real opportunity for better, easier, more satisfactory living if you use them every day.

The Pacific Electric wouldn't carry 125,000,000 passengers annually, as it does, if it wasn't most peoples' favorite regular mode of business transportation between home and office, and between city and town and country.

The Pacific Electric requires 1135 miles of track, 979 passenger cars, 7000 employees and an investment running over $100,000,000 to maintain its service.

What would these millions of passengers do if it were suddenly discontinued?

Morrow To Be Present At Probate Hearing

Protecting the city's interest in Miradero, the beautiful estate of the late Leslie C. Brand, title to which will pass to Glendale at the death of Mrs. Brand, City Attorney Ray L. Morrow today was instructed by the City Council to attend on behalf of the city all proceedings for the probate of the Brand will, "and to do all things necessary to represent the city as a devisee thereunder."

Title to Brand park was turned over to the city by Brand before his death, and in the will, to be probated in superior court within the next two weeks, he bequeathed to Glendale the Brand home and the surrounding landscaped gardens and land. The bequest included all the contents of the home, art subjects, famous paintings and statuary and valuable antiques and library.

Glendale, under present plans, will keep the estate intact to be used as a museum and art gallery, while Brand park, nearby, will be the picnic park and recreation grounds. The whole will be one of the most attractive municipally owned show places in Southern California.

They are to visit several of the sites before deciding where the camp will be held. Mrs. Anna L. La Grange, recently appointed director of local Girl Scout activities, was named camp chairman. It is her desire that every Girl Scout attend the camp.

STEAMER ON BAR

ST. LOUIS, June 2.—A thousand persons, marooned all night when the big river steamer St. Paul went aground on a sand bar in the Mississippi river, ten miles north of St. Louis, were brought to shore today after a half dozen river craft had succeeded in dislodging the vessel.

ATWATER RESIDENTS GO TO POLLS TODAY

Voting Places Will Remain Open Until
7 o'Clock Tonight; Walnut Grove
District Is Building Up

Polling places in the first district will be open until 7 o'clock tonight. No one should fail to go to the polls and cast his ballot in the general municipal election being held today. All those in line when the polls close will be entitled to vote, election officials said.

An abundant crop of walnuts in the large groves north of Los Feliz boulevard in the Walnut Grove district is assured, according to property owners in the section. The trees are in full bud at the present time and a crop unsurpassed in quantity in years is predicted.

Building activities are on the spur in the Walnut Grove section. No less than a dozen dwellings are under construction at the present time. Opening and paving of Perilla avenue through the district to connect with Park avenue has met with hearty approval in the Walnut Grove district, and plans to petition the improvement, giving a thorough thoroughfare from Los Feliz boulevard to Park avenue are under way. At present motorists wishing to make the trip from one boulevard to another must detour via San Fernando road in Glendale.

A new request for improvement of the small wash running through the district just north of Los Feliz road, where water and mud renders the roads impassable in time of rain, will be filed with the board of public works shortly by property owners. Installation of a storm drain leading to the Los Angeles river concealed beneath a paved alley is planned to do away with the objectionable water ditch.

What gasoline would you use?

If you were a professional racing driver, to whom the winning of first, second or third place in every important speedway event meant thousands of dollars in cold cash—to whom the qualities of mileage and power in your gasoline and oil were as essential as the perfection of your motor—with the choice of every gasoline made—would you take a chance on any but the finest?

Professional drivers know different gasolines and oils by actual test! Any gasoline the world over can claim certain qualities of "Mileage and Power", but these men demand absolute proof! Racing is their business—their livelihood—and with the choice of every gasoline marketed, the world's greatest drivers pick RICHFIELD.

Peter De Paolo, winner of the great Indianapolis 500 mile Classic last Saturday, established a new world's record with his remarkable time of 4 hrs. 56 min., 39.47 sec., averaging 101.13 miles per hour, making Richfield's fifth consecutive victory for the great Indianapolis Classic in the past five years—a record never equalled by any other gasoline in the world.

The first six drivers to finish Saturday were all exclusive users of Richfield Gasoline, and out of the first eight, seven had chosen Richfield as their fuel for this supreme 500 mile test. In the past two years every A.A.A. National Championship race has been won by an exclusive user of Richfield Gasoline—a wonderful tribute in itself—and in almost every race a new world's record has been established!

Every Westerner has a right to be proud of this California gasoline—its wonderful records! Made by special process by a California company from California crudes—it is proving its wonderful mileage and power superiority by an unbroken string of speedway victories and steadily increasing sales of thousands of gallons every month! Try it in your car—note the difference.

Diet and Health

"FILLERS"—NO FOOD VALUE (Part 2)

One of the chief difficulties a diabetic or reducing patient (oftentimes it is the same patient) has to contend with on a low calorie diet, is the feeling of dissatisfaction because the bulk has been lessened.

A reducing diet which has to extend over any period of time has to have all the elements necessary for proper functioning. Only a part of the energy needs can be withdrawn. (This need will be supplied by the excess body fat).

For this reason the diet should contain during the day: (1), at least one pound of vegetables (especially the green leaf vegetables) and one-half pound of fruit, fresh, preferably, or canned with very little sugar—for their vitamins and mineral elements and bulk, (a large part of these should be used raw); (2) a pint of skim or buttermilk; this will furnish a liberal supply of calcium or lime and some complete protein; (3) three or four ounces of lean meat OR fish, OR two or three eggs OR twenty large peanuts or almonds (if you do not take the milk you had better have part of your protein needs in cheese—three ounces cottage cheese (two heaping tablespoons) is 100 c., (4) one or two slices of whole wheat bread OR one or two medium sized potatoes OR two-thirds of a cup of spaghetti, rice, cereal or some simple starchy dessert—for the carbohydrate needs.

Last week, under the same title as this article, I gave you some recipes for bran biscuits and agar jelly. They have no food value, but they act as fillers and are also aids against constipation. It is inadvisable to fill the alimentary canal with too much bulk because it causes intestinal dilation, so the quantities of these indigestible substances should always be limited, and not used merely as a means of stuffing to a point of satiety.

One of the hardest things for the overweight person to contend with is the longing for sweets. Candy is especially longed for and is especially fattening because it is so concentrated. (Three full cubes of sugar contain 115 c. You can reduce candy by this.) It is really best to swear off absolutely on candy until the excessive desire has gone. If you find the longing bothers you and you feel that you are going to fall, then purchase one of those little five-cent packages of hard candies (which you can get at any place where candies are sold) and let one or two dissolve in your mouth; throw or give away the rest of the package if you find you cannot have it around without eating it. Don't ever stop in front of candy or pastry windows. Scurry along as fast as you can.

Today I am going to give you some recipes for desserts which have no more than five or ten calories to the serving. (If you are dining in a restaurant you will always find fresh fruit on the menu, and it is best to take that for dessert).

Coffee Jelly
Gelatin 1 heaping tablespoon
Cold water 1 cupful
Boiling coffee 3 cupfuls
Sacharin 2 grains
Soak the gelatin in cold water. Add the boiling coffee and sacharin. Stir the gelatin until it is dissolved. Mold and chill. This will make about six servings. Food value of one serving 5 calories.

Gelatin Whip
Soak one-half package of gelatin in one cupful of cold water. Dissolve it in two cupfuls of boiling water. Add two grains of sacharin, then add one-half cupful of fruit juice. When the mixture begins to set, whip with an egg-beater until light. Chill thoroughly.

Frozen Gelatin Whip
Pack the gelatin whip in salt and ice, six parts of ice to one part of whip, and freeze as you would ice cream.

"M. M.": A reader of your column recently asked for a recipe for pastry made with eggs. I have used the following for fruit pies, tarts and fancy little cakes: Egg Pastry—Rub one-fourth pound of butter into one-half pound of flour with the fingers, then add one ounce of sugar and one-half teaspoon of baking powder, and stir in two beaten egg-yolks. Whisk lightly, turn out onto a bread board, and roll out at once. If you wish to use it for pie crust, simply line the pie pan with it, as with any other pastry. But if you would like to make a fancy cake of it, try the following:

Almond Fingers: Line a long-shaped pan with the pastry made as above directed, then spread a little raspberry jam over the pastry on the pan-bottom and fill with the following mixture: Blanch and chop six ounces of sweet almonds; mix them with three ounces of sugar, and fold in the stiffly-whipped whites of two eggs. Slip the pan into the oven to set the pastry, then reduce oven heat to moderate and continue to bake for about thirty minutes.

"Mrs. M. S.": Some time ago one of our columnists asked for a recipe for Cinnamon Stars, which happen to have: Beat the white of three eggs very stiff, then stir into them one-half pound of sugar; continue to stir for about 30 minutes, after which add three tablespoons of ground cinnamon and one-half pound of almonds that have been put through a food chopper. (Cocoanut, in the same amount, may be substituted for the chopped almonds, if preferred, but I always use the almonds as they are much finer.) Turn the mixture out onto a board and sugar, and sprinkle with flour and sugar, and roll it to about one-quarter inch in thickness (no thicker—indeed, it is better a little thinner, if possible). Now cut out with a star-shaped tin cutter (or any desired shape) and place the stars on a buttered pan. Bake in an oven which is desired, hot or warm and moderate, never hot as the little cakes burn easily. I hope you can understand this. It is translated from an old German recipe.

Chats On Beauty

ANSWERED LETTERS

Anxious Elsie:—Consult the doctor about the blood clot on the end of the nose. If you try to do anything for it yourself you may cause a scar or make the whole matter much worse for the doctor to cure her.

Prudence:—When making a cold cream, always dissolve the wax and spermaceti in the oils by heating them together, so the oil of bitter almonds in the cleansing cream would be included with the other oils. All liquids are heated together in a separate vessel, and if borax is used add it to these, and wait for it to dissolve before you beat oils and liquids together. Perfume can be added before the cream emulsifies, or include it in the liquids, and if you do not overheat the latter, there will be no loss in the fragrance.

Beating together a cream is done much the same as beating together the oil and vinegar in making mayonnaise, and when you beat carefully as you would then your cream is very smooth. Evidently your druggist does not know that a great many women not only make their own creams, but make such a success at it that they would not use any other kinds.

Hosts at Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. James G. Jackson of 323 West Gilbert street were recent dinner hosts to the personnel of the rental department of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. Mrs. Jackson was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Albert M. Ross of 321 West Gilbert street. Favors were in the form of mappins, cleverly depicting the hobby of each of the members present. Guests were Carlton F. Burke, internationally known polo player and sportsman, who is chairman of the rental committee of the Chamber of Commerce; Harold F. Benner, manager of the rental department; J. M. Morgan, Alwin W. Norton, John L. Crider, A. W. Miller, Jr. The Great Western quartet, Frank Thomas, James Jackson, Merrill Oslin and Jess Farmer, known to radio fans through their broadcasting over station KPWB, entertained. The affair was in the nature of a jollification due to the rapid progress in leasing space in the new $400,000 Chamber of Commerce building, Los Angeles. The building stands nearly 70 per cent leased.

Auxiliary Meets

Mrs. T. G. McDougall of 128 West Elk avenue was hostess Monday afternoon to the Glendale auxiliary of the Children's hospital at the regular meeting, which was the closing gathering before summer. Mrs. Harold Braly of the board of managers was a guest and speaker. Her talk on her experience with the Community Chest drive was of especial interest to the members, as was her story of the proposed plans for a junior league convalescent home which is already near realization. The success of this worthy movement will mean that the efficiency of the hospital will be increased by one-third, as the provision of proper quarters for the convalescents will make room for the little sufferers on the waiting list, that is always only too full.

Mrs. E. J. Moschetti, president, conducted the business meeting. Minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. T. G. McDougall, also a letter from Miss Graham, in charge of the clinic, commenting on the new tank, recently provided by the Glendale auxiliary, and asking for suggestions for an inscription to be placed on it. Mrs. A. L. Bancroft, treasurer, gave a report on the finances, showing a balance of $174.54. Mrs. James H. Cunningham, chairman of salvage, reported a successful drive recently, when a surplus was left at her home after the collection truck had taken a full load. Mrs. P. E. Maxwell reported on cutting of materials and many garments were taken by members present, to be completed at home. Mrs. W. M. Kimball and Miss Emma Stevens were received as members of the organization. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Roger Bentley. The auxiliary adjourned for the summer, the next meeting to be held the second Monday in September, at the home of Mrs. E. J. Morgan, 1125 South Central avenue. Those present were Mesdames E. J. Morgan, A. L. Bancroft, James H. Cunningham, P. E. Maxwell, F. L. Doggett, R. H. Thew, W. M. Kimball, Roger Bentley, J. W. Sharpe, Miss Emma Stevens, Mrs. Harold Braly of Los Angeles and the hostess, Mrs. T. G. McDougall.

Hosts at Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Drury of 445 West Lexington drive, were dinner hosts Sunday to sixteen friends, living at the Palm apartments, which they recently completed. The affair was in the nature of a jollification due to the rapid progress in leasing space in the new $400,000 Chamber of Commerce building, Los Angeles. The building stands nearly 70 per cent leased.

The HOUSE Of The ARROW

A SERIAL STORY WRITTEN BY A. E. W. MASON
Protected By The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

"I say so," Waberski declared, folding his arms across his breast. "Very well," said Hanaud. He took from his green file a second paper written over in a fine hand and emphasized my an official stamp. "Then what will you say, Monsieur, if I tell you that the body of Madame Harlowe has been exhumed?" Hanaud continued, and Waberski's face lost what little color it had. He stared at Hanaud, his jaw working up and down nervously, and he did not say a word.

"And what will you say if I tell you," Hanaud continued, "that no more morphia was discovered in it than one sleeping dose would explain and no trace at all of any other poison?"

In a complete silence Waberski took his handkerchief from his pocket and dabbed his forehead. The game was up. He had hoped to make his terms, but his bluff was called. He had not one atom of faith in his own accusation. There was but one course for him to take, and that was to withdraw his charge and plead that his affection for his sister-in-law had led him into a gross mistake. But Boris Waberski was never the man for that. He had that extra share of cunning which shipwrecks always the minor rogue. He was wise enough to imagine that Hanaud might be bluffing too.

He drew his chair a little nearer to the table. He chuckled and nodded at Hanaud confidentially.

"You say 'if I tell you,'" he said smoothly. "Yes, but you do not tell me, Monsieur Hanaud—no, not at all. On the contrary, what you say is this: 'My friend Waberski, here is a difficult matter which, if exposed, means a great scandal, and of which the issue is doubtful. There is no good in stirring the mud.'"

"Oh, I say that?" Hanaud asked, smiling pleasantly.

Waberski felt sure of his ground now.

"Yes, and more than that. You say, 'You have been badly treated, my friend Waberski, and if you will now have a little talk with that hard one your niece—' And his chair slid back against the bookcase and he sat leaning stupidly like a man who has been shot.

Hanaud had sprung to his feet. He stood towering above the table, his face suddenly dark with passion.

"Oh, I say all that, do I?" he thundered. "I came all the way from Paris to Dijon to preside over a little bargain in a murder case!—Hanaud! Oh! ho! ho! I'll teach you a lesson for that! Read this!" and bending forward he thrust out the paper with the official seal. "It is the report of the analysis. Take it, I tell you, and read it!"

Waberski reached out a trembling arm, afraid to venture nearer. Even when he had the paper in his hands, they shook so he could not read it. But since he had never believed in his charge that did not matter.

"Yes," he muttered, "no doubt I have made a mistake," no doubt Hanaud caught the word up.

"Mistake! Ah, there's a fine word! I'll show you what sort of a mistake you have made. Draw up your chair to this table in front of me! So! And take a pen—so! And a sheet of paper—so! And now you write for me a letter."

"Yes, yes," Waberski agreed. All the bravado had gone from his bearing, all the quivering slyness. He was in a quiver from head to foot. "I will write that I am sorry,"

"That is not necessary," roared Hanaud. "I will see to it that you are sorry. No! You write for me what I dictate to you in English. You are ready? Yes? Then you begin. 'Dear Sirs.' You have that?"

"Yes, yes," said Waberski, scribbling hurriedly. His head was in a whirl. He flinched as he wrote under the towering bulk of the defective. He had as yet no comprehension of the goal to which he was being led.

"Good! 'Dear Sirs,'" Hanaud repeated. "But we want a date for that letter. April 30, eh? That will do. The day Madame Harlowe's will was read and you found you were left no money. April 30—put it in. So! Now we go on. 'Dear Sirs, send me at once one thousand pounds by the recommended post, or I make some awkwardnesses—'"

Waberski dropped his pen and sprang back out of his chair. "I don't understand—I can't write that. . . . There is an error—I never meant. . . ." he stammered, his hands raised as if to ward off an attack.

"Ah, you never meant the blackmail!" Hanaud cried savagely. "Ah! Ha! Ha! It is good for you that I now know that! For when, as you put it so delicately to Mademoiselle, the moment comes for the extenuating pleas, I can rise up in the court and urge it. Yes! I will say: 'Mr. the President, though he did the blackmail, poor fellow, he never meant it. So please to give him five years more.'"

With that Hanaud swept across the room like a tornado and flung open the door behind which Frohiser was waiting.

"Come!" he said, and he led Jim into the room. "You produce the two letters he wrote to you, firm, Monsieur Frohiser. Good!"

But it was not necessary to produce them. Boris Waberski had dropped into a chair and burst into tears. There was a little movement of discomfort made by every one in that room except Hanaud; and even his anger dropped. He looked at Waberski in silence.

"You make us all ashamed. You can go back to your hotel," he said shortly. "But you will not leave Dijon, Monsieur Waberski, until it is decided what steps we shall take with you."

Waberski rose to his feet and stumbled blindly to the door. "I make my apologies," he stammered. "It is all a mistake. I am very poor. . . . I meant no harm," and without looking at any one he got himself out of the room.

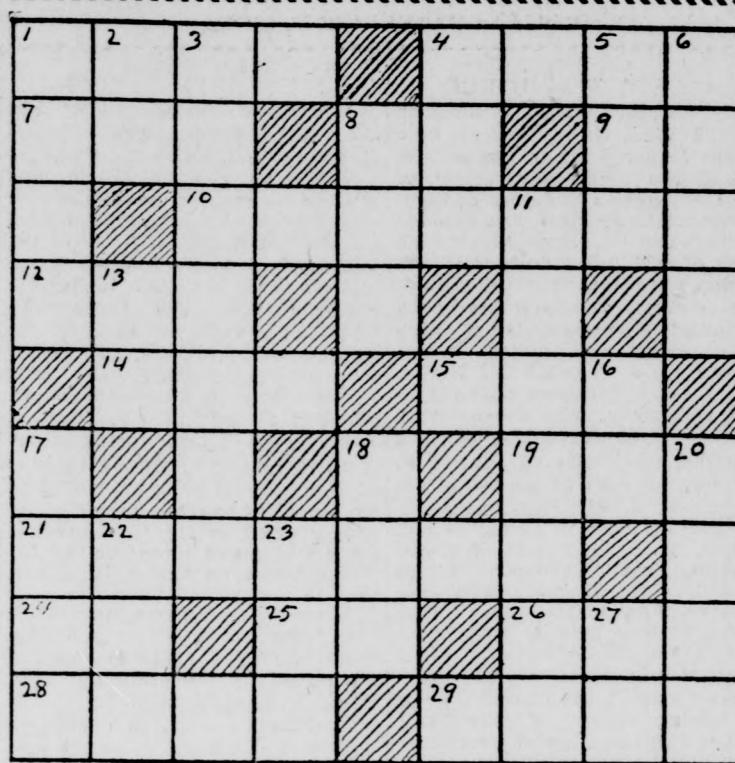

"That type? He at all events cannot any more think that Dijon is dull," said Hanaud, and once more he adventured on the dangerous seas of the English language. "Do you know what my friend Ricardo would have said? No? I tell you. He would have said, 'That fellow! My God! What a saucer!'"

Those left in the room, Betty, Ann Upcott, and Jim Frohisher, were in a mood to welcome any excuse for laughter. The interdict upon the house was raised, the charge against Betty proved of no account, the whole bad affair was at an end. Or so it seemed. But Hanaud went quickly to the door and closed it, and when he turned back there was no laughter at all upon his face.

"Now that that man has gone," he said gravely, "I have something to tell you three which is

HOW TO SOLVE THE CROSS WORD PUZZLE
The way to solve the Cross Word Puzzle is to fill in the white squares of the diagram with the words which agree with the accompanying definitions. The definitions are numbered to correspond with the numbers on the diagram.

Any word defined in the text under "HORIZONTAL" will begin at its number, shown on the diagram, and will extend all the way across to the first black space to the right of that number. That is, the word must be in the square that contains its identifying number, and extend as far as the white squares continue uninterrupted.

Any word defined under "VERTICAL" will also begin in the white space that contains its number, but will extend downward as far as the white squares remain uninterrupted.

very serious. I believe that, though Waberski does not know it, Madame Harlowe was murdered by poison in this house on the night of April 27."

The statement was received in a dreadful silence. Jim Frohisher stood like a man whom some calamity has stunned. Betty leaned forward in her seat with a face of horror and incredulity, and then from the arm chair by the door where Ann Upcott was sitting there burst a loud, wild cry.

Hanaud swung round to her, his eyes blazing. "And it is you who tell me that, Mademoiselle!" he asked in a curious, steady voice. "Yes. It's the truth," she cried with a sort of relief in her voice, that at last a secret was out which had grown past endurance. "I am sure now. There was a stranger in the house." And, though her face was white as paper, her eyes met Hanaud's without fear.

CHAPTER EIGHT THE BOOK
The two startling declarations, one treading upon the heels of the other, set Jim Frohisher's brain whirling. Consternation and bewilderment were all jumbled together. He had no time to ask

UNCLE WIGGILY

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE WISE MEN

Once upon a time there was a very wise lady hen who lived in a coop house near the Hollow Stump School. Every day, when the little animal girls and boys were inside the school, saying their lesson for the Lady Mouse Teacher, the hen would wander around the school yard.

She used to pick up many crumbs of the lunches which the children brought, and she also could listen to the boys and girls reciting their lessons through the open windows.

"In this way I picked up crumbs of knowledge as well as crumbs to eat," said the wise hen to Mr. Cock A. Doodle, the rooster gentleman.

"Knowledge and wisdom are good," crowed the rooster. "Of course you will never be as wise as I am, for see—each day I crow and make the sun rise, you can never do that."

"No," agreed the hen lady humbly. "I can never learn to crow. But perhaps that is just as well. For if I crowed and you crowed also, the sun would not know which of us to rise for."

"Exactly," said the rooster gentleman, strutting about the coop. He really believed, as did the lady hen, that his crowing made the sun rise. Oh, he was very proud, was that rooster—almost as proud as Peter Pan, who always crowed when he thought how smart he was.

So matters went on. The wise hen grew more wise each day, for she went to school from Monday morning until Friday afternoon, and even on Saturday she would walk around the yard, though of course there were no children there then reciting their lessons. But there were still crumbs of food to pick up, if not crumbs of knowledge.

All the animal folk in Woodland were talking about the wise hen lady, and how much she knew—almost, it was said, as much as the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Stump school, until, one day, Uncle Wiggily heard the news.

"I must call on this wise hen and see how much she really knows," said the rabbit gentleman to his wife. "It may be that she could teach our little rabbits on Saturdays when there is no Hollow Stump school."

"Perhaps," agreed Mrs. Longears, so the bunny gentleman hopped over the fields and through the woods until he came to the hen coop.

"I hear you are very wise," he said to Mrs. Hen. "Will you please say a big word for me so that I may know how smart you are?"

The hen lady cocked and said: "Big words do not mean anything. But if you would like to come for a walk with me we can talk together and then, perhaps, you may see if I am wise or not. I do not like to boast," said the hen lady, modestly, "but it would be a sad thing, indeed, if I had lived near the Hollow Stump school so long and had not learned something."

"We shall see how much you have learned," laughed Uncle Wiggily, with a twinkle of his pink nose. "And if I find you are wise I will have you teach me, for I am too old to go to school the children do."

So the rabbit gentleman and the hen lady went together over the fields and through the woods. The hen lady talked wisely but modestly, until, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily looked back and cried:

"Here comes the Fuzzy Fox chasing after us to eat one of us. Are you wise enough to tell whom he is going to nibble?"

"I think he will nibble both of us if he gets the chance," cackled the lady hen. "So we had better run."

"Wise enough and fair enough," cried the bunny. So they both ran. But the Fox ran also and drew nearer until Uncle Wiggily, looking back, saw how close the bad chap was, and the bunny cried to the lady hen: "Are you wise enough to think of a way to fool the Fox?"

"I think so," cackled the hen. "I will raise a big cloud of dust, like a smoke screen, and we can hide behind it until he runs past." So she scratched with her claws in the dirt and then scattered so much dust up with her flapping wings that there was a dense cloud of it. She and the bunny hid behind this cloud of dust and the Fox ran right past them, thinking they were on ahead. And when he was some distance away the rabbit and hen lady turned back home.

"I see you are a very wise hen," said Mr. Longears. "I never would have thought of that dust cloud myself. You are very wise."

"Thank you," cackled the hen lady, modestly. And if the electric fan doesn't blow talcum powder in the face of the clock and make it laugh, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the June Bug.

FIREMEN WALLOP MILKMEN, 13 TO 4

Calla Lily Pitchers Are Hit Hard By Smoke-Eaters; Simpson Hurts

By A. S. HALL
Of The Evening News Staff.
The Firemen continued to maintain their perfect record in the Twilight league yesterday when they defeated the Calla Lily aggregation, 13 to 4, at the Broadway High school grounds. The smoke-eaters turned loose their barrage in the third and fourth innings, getting six runs in the third and followed it with four in the fourth.

Blakemore started the game for the milkmen on the mound, but gave way to King, a left-handed pitcher, early in the fourth. Blakemore averaged two strikeouts for each inning he worked, but was wild in spots, walking four men. King succeeded in fanning three men in two innings, but he walked five men in the same length of time.

Simpson went the route for the fire laddies, allowing only one walk and getting eight strikeouts. He was touched for three hits, but four milkmen got to first safe on errors. Aiman was the hitting star with the firemen, getting a single, double and triple, as well as drawing a walk. Nordstrom sent the horsehide out to the centerfield fence for a homer in the third.

This afternoon the Radios will meet the Christian church. The Radios have won two and lost one, while the churchmen are in the cellar with two losses. Tomorrow afternoon will see one of the feature games of the first round, when the Hull Trucks and Public Service battle for first place.

JOHN B. FOSTER'S VIEWS

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

NEW YORK, June 2.—If there is anything that can beat the team batting of the National League for an upset form it should be produced. There isn't any form to it. The Phillies, who weren't picked to bat the ball hard enough to put a dent in a squash pie, lead the circuit with .325.

Fourth of July is the line on the pennant because a team that far along and going well will stick as a rule unless it meets with accident. Of course in the case of a double tie, or a triple tie, or approximately one, there is a chance for everybody.

Next to the Phillies in batting are the Pittsburghs with a matter of .313. That is not so very extraordinary because the Pirates were nominated to have some batting strength with Carry, Cuyler and Barnhart, to say nothing of Wright and Traynor.

The St. Louis Cards, who were figured by their optimistic boss as being the best batters and the heaviest run getters in the circuit, are hitting .287. It would have been a fair wager twenty-five to one that the Phillies would be fifteen points behind St. Louis on Decoration Day. Instead they are thirty-eight points ahead.

Here enters another shifting of the batting muse. The Giants are swatting .285, less than Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Philadelphia—but leading the league with a smoke screen scattered between them and the enemy.

And there are also the Cincinnati which are tail-enders in batting, utterly confuting all that Jack Hendricks, their manager, predicted for them, yet running much closer to form than he was willing to admit.

The one great fact to be gained by the survey of these National League batting figures is that the Giants get there, not only because they are good fielders and their pitchers are handled with rare gambling success, but because they can hit the ball with runners on the bases. That latter tells more about the Giants' success than the batting percentage figures do.

They tell a yarn of a Pittsburgh player who in the series against the Giants on the Polo Grounds in 1924, could have won every game had he come through with a pinch hit and yet never made one. That's tougher than an underdone porpoise hide shoe-string.

RUTH'S HELP FAILS

George H. Ruth, the well-known outfielder, lent his aristocratic assistance to the occasion for the first time this season but he couldn't stop the Yankees from losing to the Senators 5 to 3. George made a great catch, a near home run off Johnson and retired in the sixth, after which the Senators clouted Jones' pitching.

OLIVER IS RECALLED

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—Tom Oliver, outfielder, farmed by the Vernon club of the Pacific Coast league, to Decatur of the Three I league was recalled today and Joe Kelly, veteran outfielder, formerly with San Francisco, was given his unconditional release by the Vernon club.

To-Nights CARDS

Bud Taylor, eastern scrapper, who holds decisions over Pancho Villa, Frankie Genaro, Phil Rosenburg and Abe Goldstein, will enter the Vernon ring tonight as a slight favorite over his opponent, Jimmy McLarnin. Taylor won a victory over Goldstein a week ago last night in New York, hopped on the rattler and proceeded westward to meet the pick of the Pacific coast. The bout is scheduled for ten rounds as the main event. Joe Salas meets Young Farrell, Nick Antonio and Johnny Gerden meet in the six-round feature preliminary. It is a rematch, Antonio winning the decision before, after a real slugfest. Johnny Reno and Benny Jordan meet in a four-round affair, and Jack Grande and Eddie Keys round out the bill.

XXXVII—Monkeys and Men

In some instances man may be more intelligent than the ape but how can he use his intelligence if he does not have health? Headlines in newspaper says: "Death Rides Airship With Barthelme, after making a perfect landing pilot collapses with heart failure, when he took off at Hampton Roads, he seemed in the best of health."

I never heard of apes or monkeys having heart failure and a good friend of mine has been collecting monkeys and apes for over 20 years in the wilds of countries inhabited by apes, and he never heard of a case of heart failure among the monkeys or apes.

Another headline: "Death Car Crashes into Telephone Pole. Driver dead at the wheel." More heart failure.

That brand of health is dangerous to other people besides the man who tries to get life out of dead food.

Another headline: "How I Dodged Death a Dozen Times," by a circus clown. The man with high blood pressure is dodging death every minute of his life, in fact the most dangerous thing any of us can do is to be alive among thousands of people who for the reason of being physically unfit cannot think fast enough with a food-poisoned mind to avoid accidents even at the rate of speed allowed by traffic laws.

When a monkey's teeth become loose from eating cooked and refined food it is not necessary to pull them all out to save him from having all the diseases that are laid to bad or loose teeth; just give him his natural unrefined food prescribed by nature and his teeth will tighten up very quickly and his general health will become normal.

EXPECT TRIO TO LEAD BIG FIELD

Bobby Jones, Macdonald Smith or Hagen May Win In National Open

WORCESTER, Mass., June 2.—Professional chance takers usually fight shy of the national open golf championship. It's too uncertain, they say. Too many slips between the putter and the cup.

Yet today, twenty-four hours before the cream of American golf talent, pro and amateur, tee off in the twenty-fifth American open, a lot of wise money is being wagered that the winner of the gruelling seventy-two hole grind will be one of three men—Macdonald Smith, Bobby Jones or Walter Hagen.

This is no disparagement of the other topnotch golfers here from all sections of the country. It simply means that the chance takers, following the form chart, do not believe this trio can be headed.

All the golfers came to Worcester talking about Macdonald Smith's two miraculous performances at Lido, when he went around in a pair of 70's while veteran tournament golfers like Freddie McLeod were high in the 80's.

BARNSTORMING TRIP

ATLANTA, Ga., June 2.—Young Stribling, accompanied by nine Georgians, relatives and near relatives, headed west on a barnstorming expedition that will take him across the continent and back again. The purpose of the trip, as announced by "Pa" Stribling, is to enable Young W. L. to put a few more fights under his belt so that he may be the better prepared to take on Jack Dempsey.

Stribling's record, to date, shows that he has fought 138 battles, losing only four.

NEW YORK, June 2.—It was the common impression during recent years that deep thinking by John McGraw had jockeyed the New York Giants into their succession of pennants, but a glance at the standing of the clubs this morning, augmented by the fact that McGraw has been horsed de shoulder blades for many weeks, rather confutes this theory. Confutes is a $5 word, meaning to leave all wet.

The Giants have won twenty-eight out of forty ball games played to date, and most of them have been conducted without the benefit of McGraw's presence on the bench. While he was enjoying extremely bad health, the club was in the hands of Hugh Jennings, who regards deep thinking as a pastime for night watchmen. Mr. Jennings favors deep hitting against the centerfield fence.

McGraw probably telephoned general instructions to Jennings each morning, including his choice of pitcher. But what of the idea that McGraw had to dictate each move of each man on the ball club? He couldn't telephone instructions to a man at the plate, facing a count of two and one.

The most plausible answer is that McGraw doesn't make the Giants of today any more than the Giants make McGraw. In addition to natural speed and power, they happen to be the most versatile lot within the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

Take a look at their present lineup. It gives a few highly illuminating facts on the situation. Could the old Cubs have lost Steinfield, Johnny Evers and Frank Chance and continued to win? It is doubtful. Could the old Athletics have spared Baker, Collins and McInnes? The answer is yes, provided Galli-Curci can spare her windpipe. That is something of the position now occupied by the Giants. They have lost Fitch, Kelly and Groh from the infield, leaving only Jackson to carry on for the old guard. First, Groh was injured and Lindstrom replaced him to the satisfaction of all concerned. Frisch followed Groh to the sidelines, whereupon Kelly moved over from first base to second, and Terry stepped into the breach. All remained serene.

Kelly, himself, was the next casualty. His temporary passing brought in Young from the field, and the Giants having a plethora of outfielders, no one suffered. It is conceivable that the club might lose another good man, Jackson alone barred, and play better than .500, baseball.

They are so good that several of their best hitters are in a slump and they don't seem to feel the difference.

DOGGERS DEFEATED

Meusel's two homers, another by Lindstrom and a double by Terry gave Grimes, human salivary gland, the drying out process, and the Giants beat the Dodgers for the fifth straight time this season, score 8 to 4.

WILLIAMS BUSY

Williams staked himself to a homer, triple and single off Karr and the Browns came home on the bit to beat the Indians 10 to 2.

ENGINEER IS NAMED CITY PLANNER

C. B. Boynton Appointed By Council To Fill Post Vacated By Kinch

C. B. Boynton, 214 North Belmont street, was appointed today by the City Council to succeed Councilman S. C. Kinch as a member of the Glendale Planning commission.

Boynton, an engineer connected with Forest Lawn Memorial park, has had much experience in city planning, according to Councilman C. E. Kimlin, who nominated him. Kinch declared that "no better man could be obtained" for the position on the Planning commission.

Kinch resigned as a member of the commission when he was elected to the City Council, and since that time there has been a vacancy on the planning body. Boynton will serve with the present members, T. W. Watson, P. J. Haysden, Harry Hague and John H. Randall.

Boynton has had a wide engineering experience. For four years he was connected with the municipal engineering department at Cour d'Alene, Idaho, and at Durango, Colo. He was inspector of construction of the Michigan Central railroad tunnel under the Detroit river; was construction engineer of the Bethlehem Steel Co. and the Colorado Fuel & Iron Co.; superintendent of construction for W. E. Wood, building contractor, and is past president of the Associated General Contractors of America.

For eight years he was in the engineering department of the Anaconda Copper Mining Co. and has been development engineer of Forest Lawn Memorial park since 1921.

Boynton was born in Detroit, Mich., and received his early education in the public schools of Muskegon, Mich. He comes from a line of professional men. His grandfather and father were lawyers. His father was formerly counsel for the Pere Marquette railroad. He graduated from the engineering course at the University of Michigan in 1906 and is a member of the Zeta Psi national college fraternity. He is also a member of the Montana Society, Sons of the American Revolution and of the fire and flood control committee of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce. He is licensed by the state as a land surveyor.

STAGE AND SCREEN

RUSSELL, MASTER CROOK ON SCREEN

Gateway Feature, 'On Thin Ice,' Shows Characters Of Underworld

William Russell, the screen player, has decided never to leave the studio looking like a crook. A certain incident has convinced him it is better to look severely and unmistakably civilian.

After playing the master crook in Warners' "On Thin Ice," he left the studio in his make-up as a gangster, and stepped into his waiting machine. Bill proceeded down the boulevard and forgot about the campaign to curb speeding.

He was stopped by a traffic officer, who after taking a good look at Bill, just about decided he had accidentally picked up an auto thief.

Taken to Task
Ordinarily, speeders are just given tags and allowed to report to the speeders' court, but this officer was too fussy for that, and insisted that Bill accompany him to the police station. Upon arriving there, Russell had no difficulty in satisfactorily identifying himself, but declared that from then on he would dress for the street when leaving the studio.

"On Thin Ice," showing for the last times today at the Gateway theatre, is a fascinating whirlpool of adventure, in which two seasons of criminals, a charming unsophisticated girl and $200,000 in bonds—are indiscriminately mingled by romance and intrigue in San Francisco, the gate to the Golden West. Tom Moore and William Russell play a ruthless game for high stakes, with Edith Roberts the pawn.

GRIFFITH FILM ON COSMO BILL

'Isn't Life Wonderful' Shown On Screen; Hawaiian Trio On Stage

Cosmo theatre, Brand boulevard and Windsor road, is now playing D. W. Griffith's newest masterpiece, "Isn't Life Wonderful?" And on the stage appears the Piggly Wiggly Hawaiian Trio.

Griffith at his best—greater than even Griffith has ever been before; Carol Dempster, a great emotional actress; Neil Hamilton, the finest actor of the screen; Lupino Lane, a comedian unsurpassed even by Chaplin; laughter, pathos, entertainment; love and potatoes—these are the high lights of D. W. Griffith's new picture, "Isn't Life Wonderful?"

A simple story of simple people—even as you and I—of villainous hunger, of courageous love, of everlasting hope, or benign liver-wurst, and the joy of food and the beauty of the drabest life—that's what Griffith has made. He has blazed a new trail, made a new type of picture from a new type of story.

DEATHS-FUNERALS

MRS. SARAH E. SEWARD
Mrs. Sarah E. Seward died this morning, June 2, 1925, at Owensmouth, at the age of 86 years. She had resided in California seven years. She had lived at Owensmouth one year. Surviving her are two brothers, Arthur L. Seward of Owensmouth, Fred W. Seward of Putnam, Conn.; and three sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Lee, Mrs. Josephine Burton, and Miss Kate L. Seward, all of Gilbert, Conn. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Claremont Community church, Claremont, where interment will take place. Kiefer & Eyerick, directors.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Jacoby of 800 East Chestnut street, are the parents of a daughter, born this morning, Tuesday, June 2, 1925, at Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital.

Flats similar to those in New York that sell for $150,000, are to be offered in London for $50,000.

Makes Hit

"Friendly Enemies," with Weber and Fields, is film triumph now showing at the Glendale theatre.

If one wants to laugh, to have vividly recalled to mind the stirring events of 1917, one should not miss "Friendly Enemies," the George Melford production now showing at the Glendale theatre.

It is a picture in which the spirit of Americanism is strong throughout, a play that tugs at the heartstrings even as it calls forth bursts of merriment provoked by the restrained comedy of Weber and Fields, the comedy team that has been rocking the world with its antics for half a century.

The work of these two is beyond criticism. Essentially comedians, no one can deny that in this picture they ably demonstrate their unique talent for highly dramatic roles. As the two old Germans who are caught in the vortex of the World War and fight the battles over here, they are immense.

The love theme involving the daughter of one and the son of the other, the devotion of the mother to her husband, and intense affection of the father for his son; these are elements that are universal in their appeal and leave no eye dry.

Yet there are two laughs for every tear and enough dramatic thrill, especially at the climax, to satisfy the most exacting. The play from which the picture has been adapted had sensational runs in New York, Chicago, Baltimore, Cleveland and numerous other large cities, and when it played in Washington it called forth the personal praise of Woodrow Wilson, who was the guest of honor at the opening performance.

Glendale Girl Marries Eagle Rock Resident

The Eagle Rock Adventist church was filled last night when Miss Anna Fern Weekly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Weekly of East California avenue, Glendale, became the bride of Claude Whitlock, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Whitlock of Verdugo City. Preceding the ceremony, LeRoy Clipp of San Fernando, played violin solos. These were followed by a baritone solo by Irving A. Steinel, who sang one of his own compositions, the words of which were written especially for the occasion.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. Raleigh James and Mr. Clint. Miss Carolyn Moore sang. The bride's procession was made up of Kendall and Kenneth Nevins, ushers, Miss Dorothy Nevins, maid of honor, and little Miss Dorothy Weeda, who scattered rose petals along the path of the bride. Dr. M. M. Hare performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with veil crowned by an orange blossom wreath. Among the bride's presents was a set of silver from her parents, and a complete set of china from fellow employees at the Glendale sanitarium, where she has been employed for several years as timekeeper and cashier. After the ceremony the couple left for Coronado Beach on their honeymoon. They will be at home to their friends after June 15, at 1456 East California avenue.

COUNCIL ACTS ON WIDENING OF STREET

Palmer Avenue Improvement To Make Road 40 Feet Wide, Main Link

With the filing today of a petition of property owners for widening of the roadway and improvement of Palmer avenue from San Fernando road to Tyler street, the City Council instructed the city engineer and city attorney to draft a resolution of intention and to prepare plans and specifications that will make that street a main thoroughfare from San Fernando road to York boulevard.

The petition bore the signatures of 52.4 per cent of all property owners in the territory involved. When completed the roadway will be forty feet wide its entire length.

Order Granted

The State Railroad commission recently granted the city an order to open the crossing over the Pacific Electric, upon condition that the street was made a forty-foot paved highway. The easement for the crossing has already been obtained from the Pacific Electric Co.

Property owners along Pacific avenue also petitioned the council today to improve that street from Burckett street to Kenneth road with three-inch macadam, making a forty-six foot roadway. A resolution of intention will be placed before the council within the next few weeks by the city engineer and city attorney.

NEW YORK CLOSING

By W. S. COUSINS
For International News Service

NEW YORK, June 2.—Stocks settled down to a slightly lower price scale in active and desultory trading in the stock market today. There were few movements of any importance, either in the commodity or speculative markets, and today's session may easily be called the first of the typical summer markets. Outside traders were apathetic and pools were not inclined to push their favorites to higher prices. Profit-taking in industrial and specialty stocks developed early in the day, and there were at all times a good supply of stocks for sale at concessions from the previous closing prices.

The most financial developments of the day occurred in the bond market, where the new Argentine loan was quickly disposed of; the German 7s established a new high for all time; the Norwegian 6s, brought out on Monday, sold above the issue price. French and Belgian francs sold at a new low for the year, the Belgian franc going to 4.81 cents, but this was without particular effect on the dollar bonds of the respective governments.

Barish traders launched attacks against United States Steel and other of the industrial leaders, in an effort to unsettle the market.

Prices declined while this selling was in progress, but most of the lost ground was recovered. Failure of the Mack Trucks Co. to order a special stock or cash distribution was also seized on by bearish traders as an excuse for selling of that stock, but, after a slight reaction, this stock rallied and was one of the strongest on the board. General Electric added a few points to its recent gain; Western Union, Allied Chemicals and a few of the specialty stocks were active and fairly strong.

Trading fell off after the noon hour and transactions in the first three hours were only $23,100 shares, a considerable decline from the corresponding periods of last week's sessions. There was also a shrinkage in the total number of stocks dealt in, the being entirely submerged, the independent steel and copper stocks almost entirely disappearing from the active list, the standard and independent oils conspicuously inactive, and the motors and specialties being represented by less than half of the stocks which have been prominent in recent transactions. The same might be said for the railroad stocks, the only movement of importance being that in St. Paul preferred, which sold up 2 points, to 15 1/4, on rumors that all parties concerned had agreed on the reorganization plan for the road, thus ending one of the briefest receiverships in history.

Cotton lost about $2 a bale, following the publication of the government's report showing crop condition on May 25 at 76.6 per cent of normal, the highest since 1908. Stock sales today, 1,371,300 shares; bonds, $15,903,000.

CITRUS MARKET

NEW YORK, June 2.—Twenty-five cars Valencia, seven cars navel, five mixed cars, three cars sweets, two cars St. Michaels, one car seedlings and one car lemons sold. Oranges lower, especially on 176s and smaller; lemon market higher. Weather fair. Valencia averages ranged $3.65 to $7.75; navel, $4.40 to $7.40; lemons, $4.20 to $6.95.

MARKET SUMMARY

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—Upwards of $50,000,000 in public improvements will be spent in the New England states this year, an industrial survey carried over market wires yesterday revealed. Gains in the steel industry of Pennsylvania also were reported. The annual report of Ventura Consolidated Oil Fields corporation, with headquarters here, showed that shares earned $2.66 last year.

Los Angeles oil fields showed a daily increase of 17,300 barrels last week over the preceding week. Production for the seven days ran 349,000 barrels.

Indicating buying power of the farms, sales reports by Montgomery Ward, mail order houses, showed an increase in May over April.

With hot weather prevailing in the middle west, rains are needed for grain, market observers have wired the brokerage firms.

Rumors of a consolidation of the May Department Stores with Lit Brothers of Philadelphia are heard in the Quaker city today.

practically all the public markets in the city.

A cordon of 1000 heavily armed police and volunteer deputies flung around an area of four square blocks, guarded the mixed court when twenty-six Chinese students were arraigned, charged with rioting.

There was no disturbance, however, and the court adjourned without a decision after hearing police testimony.

Police held an inquest into the deaths of four more victims of the rioting. The total dead now is seventeen.

Large crowds of police were necessary to hold back the excited crowds.

Death List Twenty

Spurred by encouragement of Soviet propagandists who declare that "now is the time to strike against foreign imperialists," Chinese throughout the foreign settlement today launched the second day of their general strike with increasing violence and anti-foreign bitterness. The total death list is twenty, with many persons injured.

Following an attack on him by a Chinese mob, a Japanese police constable opened fire, killing one rioter and seriously wounding two others.

Other mobs scattered throughout the foreign section and stoned practically empty. Telephone service was partially interrupted as a result of a walkout of many Chinese operators.

Additional arrests were made today of Chinese reputed to be leaders of the riotous workers.

Trial of the strikers will open tomorrow.

A demand on the foreign consuls for release of those arrested by the Japanese and Sikh police was made in a note delivered by the Chinese foreign commissioners. It also asked compensation for the families of the rioters who were slain, and punishment for those responsible for the deaths.

The accused were brought before the American assessor today, the Shanghai volunteer corps, have surrounded the hall to afford protection, according to information received here.

The rate payers' meeting has been called to take emergency measures to cope with the situation brought about by the general strike of Chinese guilds or labor unions and the riot brought about by strikes in the Japanese cotton mills which to date have taken a total of ten dead and over thirty wounded.

Fear Bomb Plot

The international settlement at Shanghai is controlled entirely by foreigners through the municipal council headed by Stirling Fessen-den, an American attorney, as chairman. Chinese, although owning property in the settlement, are not entitled to vote at the rate payers' meeting and it is feared that radical elements may take advantage of today's meeting to make an attack on the foreign representatives. Practically every influential foreigner in Shanghai will attend the meeting and a bombing would have disastrous consequences.

The American mounted troop is composed exclusively of young American business men of Shanghai. It is commanded by Captain W. R. Rice, general manager in the far east for the West Coast Life Insurance Co.,

and a former officer in the New York National Guard, and First

Lieutenant H. D. Rodger, prominent attorney, formerly of

Camden, N. J.

Armed members of the unit, together with special police, including a number of American business men, also are patrolling the streets of the settlement as Chinese police have been unable to successfully handle the disturbances.

The riot, although caused by strikes in Japanese owned cotton mills on the outside of the foreign settlement, have all occurred on or near Nanking road, the city's principal business street. The latest outbreak occurred at the

DEBT PARLEYS WANTED BY CAPITAL

President Agrees With Aides
On U. S. Policy Should Allies Negotiate

BULLETIN
ROME, June 2.—A loan of $50,000,000 to stabilize the falling lira has been concluded with J. P. Morgan & Co. by a group of Italian money-issuing banks. Finance Minister De Stefani told the Chamber of Deputies today.

By H. K. REYNOLDS
For International News Service
WASHINGTON, June 2.—President Coolidge agrees with Secretary of State Kellogg, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and other members of the American debt commission that any debt negotiations between the United States and other governments should be held in Washington. It was stated officially at the White House today.

While it was explained that the president regarded the place for holding negotiations as a question to be decided solely by the commission, officials said there was no disposition to send American debt negotiators either to Paris or London for a conference on the French debt.

Secretary Mellon does not believe that it will ever be possible for France and other European nations to re-establish their credit, stabilize their currency and return to the gold standard as has Great Britain, without funding their $7,000,000,000 of indebtedness to the United States.

This statement was made at the treasury today in the course of a discussion of the international financial situation as it affects the foreign debts of this government. Pointing out that Great Britain considers the funding of her $1,000,000,000 debt to the United States as a big asset in getting back to the gold standard and in putting her fiscal affairs in order, officials declared that what was true in the case of England would continue so in the case of the other debtor nations.

It was learned at the treasury that nearly all the nations which have entered preliminary debt negotiations with the United States have asked for better terms than those accorded Great Britain, that is, funding over a period of sixty-two years with a minimum interest rate of 3 per cent. As a general rule, however, the American debt commission will regard the British agreement as a basis for all future agreements.

Mr. Wilbur and his mother formerly lived in Wichita, Kan., where they had a grocery business. There are eighty of their former patrons living in Glendale.

Fred B. Allen, brother of Mrs. Roy W. Hogue, 329 North Jackson street, is visiting his sister and mother here during the Shrine convention. Mr. Allen is here from Denver and is in charge of Shrine Pullman trains while they are in Los Angeles. Mr. Allen's mother is seriously ill at the Hogue home in Glendale.

TODAY'S GAMES

BULLETIN
NEW YORK, June 2.—With Babe Ruth batting at a .500 clip in his second game of the season and Bob Meusel smashing out a pair of home runs, the New York Yankees this afternoon brought their five-game losing streak to an ending by beating the Senators 8 to 5.

Ruth was credited with four appearances at the plate. In the first inning he reached first when hit by a pitched ball. In the third he struck out. He singled in the fourth. In the sixth he was thrown out, while in the eighth he made his first extra base hit of the season, a ponderous double to right center. Ruth left the game in the eighth inning after he had doubled when Witt was sent in to run for him.

NEW YORK, June 2.—Bob Meusel, Yankee outfielder, made his thirteenth homer of the season in the third inning of the game with the Washington Senators this afternoon. Alan Russell was the victim of the clout.

NEW YORK, June 2.—Showing no ill effects from his efforts of yesterday, Babe Ruth came back into the lineup this afternoon against Washington in his second appearance this year in a regular game.

Despite perfect weather, only a handful of fans welcomed the big bam during the batting practice. Less than two thousand were in the Yankee stadium fifteen minutes before game time.

Ruth contented himself with only a few lazy swats at the ball preliminary to the game. He sat in the dugout until the umpires called time.

In an effort to halt the Yankee losing streak, now extending over five straight games, Miller Huggins benched Pipp and Ward and sent Gehrig to first and Shanks to second.

Ruth got on base in the first inning when he was hit by a pitched ball. However, there were two out at the time and the side was retired when Combs was caught napping on second. Ruth landed an easy pop fly which retired Judge in the first inning, and his catch of J. Harris' fly in the second meant an out for that player. Washington scored a run in the second.

Coolidge Has Offer to Be Movie Actor

WASHINGTON, June 2.—President Coolidge today declined to become a movie actor.

A motion picture company had planned to enroll the president at Annapolis tomorrow as one of its stars when he handed a diploma to one of its actors, taking the part of a midshipman graduating from the United States naval academy.

After the president refused to go through with it, following a conference with Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, it was decided to make the pictures at long range, so that it will be difficult to establish the individuals.

URGES PEACE OR PAYMENT BY EUROPE

Foreign Nations Are Able To Meet Obligations,
Says Rev. Cole

Unless world peace can be bought by releasing Europe of its financial obligations, the United States should collect the debts created during the World war, Rev. Clifford A. Cole, pastor of the Central Christian church, told members of the Glendale Round Table club in discussing the economical and commercial status of Europe today noon.

"Europe expects to pay its debts and of a right should pay them. Since visiting the British Isles and the continent recently I have become convinced that unless international peace can be assured through cancellation of the war loans, America should insist on prompt and full payment," Rev. Cole declared.

The speaker said that he believed Europe has turned its worst corner and that the nations are on the upward grade industrially and commercially. In the matter of government, prospects are not so bright, he brought out.

England's Lead Gone
Rev. Cole prophesied that England and the British Isles will never return to the commanding place in the industrial world that it held prior to the war. Other nations of the continent have learned that they, too, can maintain large industries and that England has no corner on the market, he said. For this reason they will do much of their own manufacturing and not depend on the British in the future.

The government, dole, unless discontinued in England, will pauperize the nation," Rev. Cole declared. "The tendency toward Bolshevism among young students in England is marked, he said. Red flags displayed in the public streets of Glasgow were cheered to the echo in his hearing, he said.

The hope of Britain lies in its great colonies, western Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the United States, he said. "Never will the million unemployed men return to work in England. Attraction to the colonies of the great mass of youths will be the only economic salvation for the empire."

Urges Respect
Rev. Cole urged a greater respect and love for the British Isles on the part of Americans. The British are the only Europeans who respect or reverence the United States, he said. Other nations "ridicule and abhor America," he added.

"Europe as a whole, looks to this nation, however, for moral support and backing in the trying years that lie ahead and unless America renders this service to the world, the future history of Europe will be written on the Pacific, not the Atlantic shores."

Rev. Cole was the speaker of the day at the regular Round Table meeting at the Cowan, publisher of The Glendale Evening News, was introduced as the guest of the club by Dr. L. L. Cravens, president. Plans for the international convention of Round Table at Long Beach September 26, 27 and 28 were discussed at the meeting, held at the Egyptian Village cafe.

Issues Warning Over Private Parking Space

When one has developed a fine, improved parking space for private automobiles, and then finds it filled with strange machines and it becomes necessary to park automobiles on the street wherever a few feet of space can be found, probably several blocks away—what to do?

Police Judge F. H. Lowe has been asked to answer the question. H. S. McCormack, president of H. S. McCormack and Associates, Inc., wants to know.

His firm several months ago established a private parking space on Wilson avenue in the rear of the Lawson building. When drivers of trucks and pleasure cars began using the property and disregarding the large sign which denoted the place as reserved for H. S. McCormack & Associates, Inc., Judge Lowe was appealed to. He recommended that a sign be erected reading "Private property. No trespassing," and then if necessary bring suit for trespassing.

That was done. Then, as a last resort, a chain was hung across the entrance and each of the thirty-five members of the firm given a key to the lock holding the chain. McCormack continues:

"We have improved the property for the purpose, and had a neat fence erected and the space divided off for our cars, and in all, have an investment of $20,000, which we have not been able to control.

"The question now is, what will happen when trespassers have their cars locked in our property? If they disregard the signs and leave their cars on our parking space and we desire to lock up the space while at the theatre, can we lock our chain, or must we leave the parking space open for use of the public in general?"

Honor Woman Who Founded Tuesday Club

On January 9, 1898, Mrs. Philip Parker entertained a group of Glendale women in celebration of her birthday, the affair resulting in the formation of an informal social group which developed through the years into the Tuesday Afternoon club.

Commemorating that birthday party and honoring Mrs. Parker for the part she has taken in the Tuesday Afternoon club, the Past Presidents' club meeting yesterday for luncheon at the clubhouse, voted unanimously to make Mrs. Parker an honorary member. Mrs. Parker resides at 530 Kenneth road.

Full account of the luncheon meeting yesterday was given in yesterday's Glendale Evening News.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—At 4 o'clock this afternoon, in the Red room of the New Willard hotel, Washington will say its last farewell to Thomas R. Marshall. Funeral services for the former vice-president will be held at that hour. They will be conducted by the Rev.
